Lenin Statue Ribbon Is Cut

© New York Times Service

Moscow — Leonid I. Brezhnev, general secretary of the Communist Party, cut a ribbon Thursday to unveil a large statue of Lenin in the Kremlin and open unofficially the jubilee of the Bolshevik Revolution.

The official opening will be a great ceremonial session Friday in the Kremlin. A major address by Brezhnev will be its keynote.

The brief unveiling ceremony on the Kremlin slope overlooking the Moscow River brought together the principal leaders of world communism. The last of the foreign delegations arrived Thursday, occasioning a surprise that is interpreted by diplomatic observers as a slap at the Soviet leadership.

Cuba Sends Machado

The Cuban delegation arrived, headed by the health minister, Jose Ramon Machado Ventura. Last Saturday the Soviet foreign ministry announced that President Osvaldo Dorticos Torrado would lead the delegation.

Premier Fidel Castro's refusal to join in the pilgrimage to Moscow for the Nov. 7 anniversary was generally interpreted, even by Communist sources, as an open rebuke to the Soviet Union. The further downgrading of Cuban representation, after Moscow had announced Dorticos' participation, takes on the aspect of an intentional slap, according to diplomats.

No explanation of the change was given by Soviet or Cuban sources.

Moscow disapproves of Havana's fomenting of Communist insurgency in various Latin American countries as premature, irresponsible, bound for defeat and therefore harmful to the Communist cause. Castro condemns the Soviet leaders as foes of the world revolution that their predecessors began 50 years ago.

The combination of collegial leadership, which limits emphasis on any one present personality, and the limbo to which most of Lenin's contemporaries and all his successors as Soviet leaders have been assigned confer the status of a spectacular superstar on a man who is pictured officially as a model of the simple way of life.

601-CARAT DIAMOND MAKES THEM RICH

Moyers Certain LBJ Will Run

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

President Johnson's former chief White House aide, Bill Moyers, said Thursday he has no doubt that the President will seek re-election and he believes the 1968 election contest will "go down to the wire."

Moyers tabbed New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller as the President's toughest possible Republican opponent.

The Long Island newspaper publisher was in Lincoln to address a banquet honoring the centennial birthday of The Lincoln Journal and the Journal-Star Printing Co.

Publisher

Moyers, 33, former presidential press secretary and Johnson's closest assistant, left the White House last Jan. 31 to become publisher of "Newsday."

Moyers said he cannot conceive the possibility that Johnson would voluntarily give up the presidency by deciding not to seek re-election.

Of the major GOP presidential prospects, California Gov. Ronald Reagan would be the easiest opponent for Johnson, Moyers said, although Reagan would prove to be "more marketable" than was Barry Goldwater in 1964.

No Fear

Reagan would not arouse the fear that Goldwater did, Moyers noted.

Former Vice President Richard Nixon and Michigan Gov. George Romney would also be easier for Johnson than would be Rockefeller, he said.

Moyers answered inquiries at a private luncheon, then authorized publication of the context of his remarks with a few specific exceptions.

Romney, he said, was prematurely embraced by the eastern Republican establishment before it discovered that he did not really fit its mold.

STAR PHOTO

MOYERS . . . addresses 'birthday' banquet.

While one of Nixon's major obstacles is his so-called "loser" image, Romney suffers from the fact that he is now viewed as a future loser, Moyers said.

Although polls might tell Johnson that he would lose an election today, he knows that once the Republicans choose their nominee, he will automatically become as much of a target as the President, Moyers said.

That nominee must then take specific positions on specific issues, he noted.

Moyers told the banquet audience Thursday night that "America is suffering from a paralysis of understanding" over Vietnam and other complicated issues, and both the government and the press are to blame.

"I think both the government and the press have a special responsibility to restore meaning to the debate over Vietnam," he said.

Instead of being the focal point for deep internal division and increased belligerance between Americans, Vietnam "ought to be the subject of serious, sustained debate between mature people," Moyers said.

Fanatics Hit

"It is not a subject for the fanatics or for adolescents."

Fanatics on both sides hurt their own cause, he suggested.

The militant sympathizers of our Asian policy make it difficult for the U.S. to negotiate even though it is "very unlikely" to obtain any unconditional surrender in that jungle conflict, Moyers said.

Easier To Accuse

"The harder positions freeze, the easier it becomes to accuse the President of appeasement, or worse, if we ever do negotiate."

On major issues, Moyers said, "never have people had so much information and understood it so poorly.

"It is not enough for the press to content itself with reporting and reflecting the violence and agony and anarchy in our life without helping us to find a vision of a better life," he declared.

No Book

Moyers told the luncheon group that he has no plans to write a book on his White House experiences, and he believes others who have done so have performed a disservice to the presidency.

A President should be permitted fully frank and intimate moments with his advisors without fear that his remarks or moods will be reproduced in print at a future time, Moyers said.

Johnson, he said, prefers as much time as possible to make a policy decision as, Moyers suspects, would all Presidents.

But, when necessary, decisions can come quickly.

20 Minutes

The decision to send U.S. troops to the Dominican Republic in 1965 came after just 20 minutes of consultation, Moyers said.

Johnson wants policy matters presented to him in reasonably brief memos of perhaps two or three pages, whenever possible, Moyers said. When memos are longer than that, the President suspects that the issue has not been sufficiently explored and is not ready for his decision, Moyers noted.

Official papers are placed at Johnson's bedside every night for his perusal, Moyers said, and the pile usually measures about three feet.

He'll Veto Any Protection Bill

. . . STRONGEST WORDS YET

Washington (UPI)—President Johnson served notice Thursday he would veto any protectionist trade quota bill that crosses his desk.

Bills to limit inports of foreign goods would "invite massive retaliation from our trading partners abroad, Johnson told about 1,000 delegates to the Consumer Assembly, an association of consumer interest groups.

Must Not, Will Not

"These bills must not become law," Johnson said. "And they are not going to become law as long as I am president of this country."

Dozens of protectionist measures to establish import quotas on products ranging from strawberries to steel have been introduced in Congress. They are a result of the Kennedy Round trade negotiations in Geneva, in which the United States agreed to lower its tariff barriers.

Johnson, in his strongest offensive against protectionism yet, charged that the bills would lead to rising prices, would shrink the U.S. share of the world market and would give consumers less of a choice on what they could buy.

Appeals To Public

He called off a massive public campaign to defeat the protectionists and also urged consumers to band together to break down the congressional blockade against his tax increase and consumer bills.

Johnson said his proposed 10% income tax surcharge, considered dead in this session of Congress, would take only "one penny out of the average American dollar" — far less then consumers would pay in increased taxes resulting from inflation if the tax bill dies.

Johnson also called for citizen pressure for passage of the surtax and of his major consumer bills, including "truth in lending" legislation, standards for fireproofing of clothing and safety regulations for natural gas pipelines.

Little Cost

At a time when the nation is trying to find ways to save money, he said, the cost to the taxpayer of these bills "is practically nothing.

"The savings to the consumer are in untold grief and million of dollars."

"Without the indignation and actions of an aroused public," the President declared, "without the federal government's strong sense of responsibility to the consumer public, the counter in out stores might still be filled with Kickapoo Indian sagdwa" (an American frontier cure-all).

Democrats Attack Tiemann's Record

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Nebraska's Democratic Party Thursday accused Gov. Norbert Tiemann of attempting to shift the state tax burden to "those least able to pay" by advocating a higher sales tax rate.

The tax criticism was leveled by the party's state executive committee in a nine-point assault on the Republican governor's record.

State Chairman John Mitchell of Kearney outlined Democratic allegations at a news conference in Lincoln.

Shifting

Tiemann, he said, is attempting to shift the 50-50 balance orginally proposed for sales tax revenue and income tax revenue to produce a heavier reliance on the sales tax.

Democrats urged that the Legislature permit the 2½% sales tax rate to drop to 2% effective Jan. 1, 1969, as now scheduled, rather than hike it to 3% as proposed by the governor.

"The sales tax rate should be the more stable" of the two tax rates, Mitchell said. If Tiemann is "unable to reduce spending," he suggested, then the Legislature should consider expanding the sales tax to services in order to raise additional revenue.

Legal Actions

Mitchell announced that Democrats are considering "legal action to prevent the sale of state school lands," including a possible lawsuit attacking the 1965 action constitutional grounds.

Democrats continue to believe that the school lands should not be sold, he said, and will investigate the possibility of voter petition drives or future legislative action to repeal the 1965 law.

Mitchell said the party will oppose the proposed constitutional amendment to permit revenue bond financing of highway construction.

If more highway construction funds are needed, he said, they should be raised by increased highway user taxes and fees, rather than through bonded debt.

If a special session of the Legislature is summoned by the governor for any purpose prior to 1969, Democrats urged that "the confusion" over what items were excluded from the repeal of the levy on household goods and personal effects be presented to the lawmakers for correction.

In other action, the executive committee unanimously endorsed President Johnson's Vietnam policies.

Studies

The party will conduct in-depth studies on major state issues in coming months, Mitchell said, and plans to present its recommendations to the electorate in 1968 and to the Legislature in 1969.

In other assaults on Tiemann, Democrats charged that:

—the governor's office has been expanded and is undertaking "unjustified increases in spending" despite the governor's campaign promises to trim spending.

—Tiemann "manipulated" funds in order to spend $65,000 more than the amount authorized by the Legislature for purchase of a new state airplane.

—the governor's directive that state agencies reduce their number of employes by 10% was "political gimmickry" and has not been carried out.

—Tiemann's decision to withdraw Nebraska from participation in the Missouri River Basin Commission was made for political purposes without consulting state water development authorities.

Soviet Authors Battle Censors

In the spring of 1967 Aleksandr I. Solzhenitsyn, whom most Russians regard as their greatest living literary talent, left his home and came to Moscow.

The Union of Soviet Writers was preparing for its fourth congress in May and Solzhenitsyn had important views to place before the body. However, the union's directors had no intention of giving the floor to anyone with such controversial ideas.

Solzhenitsyn intended to propose the abolition of Soviet internal censorship on literature and art and the transformation of the Union of Soviet Writers from a virtual administrative arm of the Soviet government into an organization dedicated to the rights of writers.

Letter Written

When it became apparent that the union would not let him speak, Solzhenitsyn committed his views to a long, carefully reasoned letter. He appended a detailed account of his own persecution and the persecution of other writers by Soviet authorities.

Solzhenitsyn spent 10 years in Stalin's prison camps and forced exile. His novel "One Day in the Life of Ivan Denisovich" was a product of his concentration camp years.

The book was published in late 1962 after the personal intervention of former Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev. Since that time only three short stories by Solzhenitsyn have been published in Russia although all (except a handful of extreme reactionaries) regard him as the finest talent in Russia.

Seventeenth in a Series

As he noted in his letter to the writers union, he cannot get his work published.

Solzhenitsyn's manifesto was not read at the congress and produced no public re-

Rohlf Is Charged In Embezzlement

Sioux City, Iowa (UPI)—A former employe of the Farmers Savings Bank in Remsen was formally charged in Federal District Court Thursday with embezzling $5,000 from the bank and forging a note for $3,900.

Gary Wayne Rohlf, 35, Remsen, waived a preliminary hearing and was bound over to a federal grand jury. He was free on $1,000 bond.

Elm Trees Bare Enough For Spraying

By BOB SCHREPF
Star Staff Writer

Elm trees are now bare enough to begin preventive spraying against the beetles that carry Dutch Elm disease, according to City Forester Emilio Fontana.

He said the park department will start spraying trees on city property next week.

Fontana suggests that neighbors get together to have trees on private property sprayed—that if neighborhoods hire commercial sprayers to do the work the cost per tree might be much lower, "probably just a few dollars per tree."

"The city is willing and happy to give free advice to private arborists and property owners on how to treat the trees," he said.

He noted that spraying should be done when the trees are bare and when the temperature is no lower than 40 degrees.

Fontana said the "results of the spraying of the city's trees" (largely those in the parking) and the trimming are "so good" that it demonstrates the value.

So successful has the city's program been thus far that less than half of one percent of the trees have been killed, he said.

Spraying of privately-owned trees by the owners would make for "tremendous success" in controlling the disease, he said, because of the efficiency in controlling the beatles if all elm trees in the city are treated.

The city inspects all trees —both city and privately-owned—for signs of the disease. If a tree appears to have Dutch Elm disease, a culture is taken and developed for seven days in the city forester's laboratory for a positive diagnosis.

If the tree has the disease, the city orders removal immediately.

Removal of a tree can cost $100-$150, while an elm shade tree is worth up to $300 and possibly $500, Fontana said.

"Wouldn't you spend a few dollars to save something worth that much?" he asked.

Reds Sacrifice Men By Platoon

Saigon (AP) — The U.S. Army threw fresh reinforcements Friday into the defense of Loc Ninh where Red commanders have sacrificed platoon after platoon in nearly nonstop fighting since Sunday.

Two batallions of the U.S. 25th Infantry Division—about 1,500 men — were sent to the area of the embattled district headquarters town, 72 miles north of Saigon, to back up South Vietnamese troops and units of the U.S. 1st Infantry Division.

U.S. headquarters put the enemy death toll at 832 in the five-day siege — 463 of them killed Thursday. Prisoners told U.S. officers they had been ordered to take the sector at all costs.

Intelligence reports indicated the Communists had planned to set up a headquarters in the area.

Against the staggering enemy losses, U.S. and South Vietnamese officers reported their own casualties as relatively light. The announced toll since Sunday was eight U.S. soldiers killed and 32 wounded, and 23 South Vietnamese killed and 74 wounded.

In Thursday's fighting, the Vietnamese and 1st Division positions came under ground attacks in the six hours before dawn. The U.S. command said the enemy failed to penetrate perimeter defenses of either force and broke contact at daybreak, dragging off their dead and leaving blood trails.

In the air war, North Vietnam declared two U.S. jets—an A4 Skyhawk and an F4 Phantom — were shot down over Nghe An Province, midway between the border demilitarized zone and Hanoi.

There was no immediate comment from American authorities.

Air Raids Hobbled

Closing monsoon weather hampered American air strikes Wednesday. U.S. pilots flew 137 missions, but all were confined to the panhandle south of the Hanoi-Haiphong area.

From Nha Trang, 200 miles northeast of Saigon, came word of the fifth Buddhist suicide by fire in the last two months in protest against the government of President Nguyen Van Thieu.

The charred body of a nun, 30, was found on the steps of a pagoda near Nha Trang, along with three letters of protest.

Cambodians Give Jackie Warm Hello

Phnomh Penh, Cambodia (UPI) — Jacqueline Kennedy and chief of state Prince Norodom Sihanouk, laughing and chatting like two old friends rode down U.S.S.R. Boulevard and Mao Tse-tung Avenue Thursday to the affectionate cheers of thousands of Cambodians.

But officials let it be known that despite the flood of warmth for President John F. Kennedy's widow on her arrival, there was little chance it would melt the ice between Cambodia and the United States.

Sihanouk broke diplomatic relations more than two years ago because the United States, fighting in next-door Vietnam, allegedly did not respect Cambodia's borders.

Nonetheless Mrs. Kennedy received a welcome equalled only by that given last year to French President Charles de Gaulle, whom Sihanouk calls Cambodia's greatest friend.

Mrs. Kennedy is in Cambodia to fulfill a girlhood dream to see the fabled temples in the long-lost city of Angkor.

Allies Lose 446 Killed

Saigon (AP) — The Vietnam war last week was reported Thursday to have cost the allies 446 dead, a marked rise from the 281 killed in the previous reporting period, Oct. 15-21. Spokesmen said 1,389 Communists were killed, against a readjusted figure of 1,556 for the previous week.

The U.S. command said 166 Americans were killed, 966 wounded and 14 missing or captured. A week earlier there had been 193 dead, 949 wounded and seven missing.

South Vietnam's military headquarters reported 220 government troops killed, 693 wounded and 41 missing, a sharp rise from losses in the previous week.

The other allies had 60 dead and 120 wounded, their highest weekly toll in the war.

An unarmed B52 jet bomber crashed in flames near Rome, N.Y., Thursday. Six of the eight crewmen were killed. More Negroes Better Income

. . . BUT SLUM LIFE GETTING WORSE, LBJ'S STUDY FINDS

© New York Times Service

Washington—The best statistics available to President Johnson suggest that a growing number of American Negroes are moving into middle-income brackets.

At the same time, Negro life in the hard-core city slums, drawing ever new residents from the South, seems to be getting no better and often worse.

A statistical portrait was ordered by Johnson after this and achievments of the Negro. The result, announced by the White House Thursday, shows that generalization about the Negro is becoming ever more misleading and hazardous.

"It does not confirm the diagnosis of bleakness and despair—that there has been no recent progress for Negroes in America and that violence is therefore a logical remedy," Johnson said. "It does not confirm the opposite view: that 'Negroes have been given too much.' "

The President's study is generally bare of claims of political or governmental achievement, although many of its current statistics are compared to those of 1960 — the year of the last complete census. It was also the year in which the Democratic Party returned to power.

The material, consisting of 97 charts and brief readings of them, was compiled by the Bureaus of the Census and of Labor Statistics and published with the title "social and economic conditions of Negroes in the United States."

Mao's Backers Take Control Of Inner Mongolian Region

Tokyo (AP)—Peking's official New China News Agency said Thursday supporters of Chairman Mao Tse-tung have finally seized power in Inner Mongolia.

In a broadcast monitored here, the agency said, "The revolutionary committee of the Inner Mongolian Autonomous Region has been established."

The establishment of the committee was announced Wednesday at a meeting held in Huhehot, capital of Inner Mongolia.

The revolutionary committee in Inner Mongolia was the eighth claimed to have been established on the vast China mainland in Mao's power struggle with President Liu Shao-Chi.

The Mao forces claimed to have set up seven other committees in Heilungkiang, Shantung, Kweichow, Shansi and Tsinghai Provinces and in Peking and Shanghai. However Red China has 27 provinces and autonomous regions.

Congo Charges Invasion From Portuguese Land

Kinshasa, Congo (UPI) — President Joseph D. Mobutu charged Thursday two columns of troops have invaded the Congo from the "direction of Angola," a Portuguese territory. He said government troop reinforcements were being rushed to Katanga Province and that a state of emergency may be declared.

The government hinted that the troops, apparently reinforcements for white mercenaries under siege at Bukavu, were sent by the Portuguese. Mobutu said a formal complaint against "Portuguese aggression" will be lodged with the United Nations Security Council.

In Lisbon, the Portuguese foreign ministry denied any armed group had crossed Angola territory into the Congo.

The report of new troop reinforcements and a threat of even wider bloody fighting, came as Congolese authorities reported that government troops had smashed their way into the Bukavu mercenary stronghold, inflicted "heavy casualties" and seized a number of arms.

The government had increased artillery and bomb attacks on the town Sunday and have reportedly kept it under an around-the-clock bombardment ever since.

The Congolese claimed that since the intensified attacks began Sunday, 34 white mercenaries and 121 Katangese rebel troops supporting them have been killed.

Romney Sets Near Future To Tell Plans

Lansing, Mich. (AP) — Gov. George Romney said Thursday he will announce if he is a candidate for the Republican nomination for president "in the near future."

Romney said he has cancelled the Columbia Broadcasting System half-hour television program he had scheduled for Nov. 15 "because of the restrictions imposed by the network."

"These restrictions would have, in effect, made it mandatory that I announce to a single network two weeks in advance that I had reached an affirmative decision concerning seeking the presidential nomination," Romney said.

"A decision whether or not to become a candidate should be conveyed first to all the American people at one time through all media simultaneously and equally," he said. "This is what I intend to do in the near future."

The governor did not elaborate.

Greenbugs Continue To Attack

Roselle Urges Care In Use Of Insecticide

Greenbugs, small green aphids that attack wheat, are still causing damage in central Nebraska fields, a University of Nebraska insect specialist said Thursday.

Bob Roselle said controls with parathion sprays have been effective, but if temperatures are low, or wind velocity too high during application, effectiveness is reduced.

"Following news releases regarding parathion poisoning in Mexico and Florida, many persons have expressed a sincere concern about this material. In each case, deaths resulted from carelessness — human faults — not the fault of the insecticide itself," Roselle commented.

"Parathion, methyl parathion, and Systox (also Di-Syston, if used), are highly toxic materials," he said. "They must be used only by experienced applicators. Like automobiles, if handled without proper caution, tragedy may result. If handled properly there is no danger.

Warns Hunters

"Hunters should ask farmers if their wheatfields have been sprayed during the last two or three days. If so, it would be a good idea to avoid hunting in such fields. Parathion can be absorbed through the skin.

"Parathion residues in animals do not present a hazard. If pheasants are lively enough to fly, they would not have enough insecticide to cause concern. Applications at recommended rates, should have little effect on pheasants or deer. Parathion breaks down rapidly, so accumulated amounts in game are not likely," Roselle stated.

For farmers who need to use parathion for greenbug control, Roselle listed these specific recommendations:

Apply parathion, four to eight ounces active ingredient per acre. If temperature is below 50 degrees or wind movement more than five to seven miles per hour, effectiveness is reduced.

The ideal conditions to spray with aircraft are temperatures in the 60s or above, and surface winds of five miles per hour or less.

Late fall infestations of greenbugs present the most difficult control situation. When wind conditions are favorable, temperature will most likely be too low.

Better Control

Methyl parathion will probable provide better control at lower temperatures, but is slightly higher in cost than parathion. Systox, a systemic insecticide, can be used at four ounces active ingredient per acre. This material is absorbed into the plant and will last longer than parathion. Low temperatures will also affect the activity of Systox.

If parathion or methyl parathion is used, at least 15 days should pass before pasturing fields. If Systox is used, at least 21 days must be allowed between application and pasturing.

Greenbug control is restricted to winter wheat fields. Corn, alfalfa, pasture fallow ground, and soil bank lands are not being sprayed.

Work Progresses On Seward Spur

By GARY CLAXTON
Outstate Nebraska Bureau

Seward — Concrete paving work on Seward's access road to Interstate 80, State Spur 127, is expected to be completed within a week to 10 days, according to project engineer Willard Rachow.

Work began about a week ago on the five and one-half mile stretch. Adverse weather conditions have slowed the $430,000 project. But at this time only about two miles remain to be paved, Rachow said.

He indicated that about another week to 10 days of work will be needed after the paving is completed to get the shoulders, bridge approaches and a stretch in town completed.

The means the stretch could open about Nov. 18, he said. But he added that additional rain or cold weather could set the date back at least another week.

However, despite Thursday morning's rain, the road crews completed 4,800 feet of paving—the single day high so far during the project.

Although the road has long been a state spur, initial bridge work over the Blue River was done about four years ago to prepare for Interstate traffic.

Subsequently, part of the structures were built and the grading was done about two years ago.

Rachow said cement was being mixed for the 18 trucks hauling for the project at a central plant set up on the road about two miles from the Interstate.

Rachow said construction on the road cannot begin each day until the temperature reaches 32 degrees and the crews are assured it will reach 40 degrees by noon.

Nebraska News

He added that there is a critical time of from one to two and one half hours that rain will damage the fresh cement.

"Some days it's been 10 or 11 a.m. before we've been able to begin," he said. "We just have to judge every day by its characteristics."

Snowfall Ranged Up To Six Inches In Western Area

Western Nebraska received the state's heaviest accumulation of snow Thursday with from three to six inches reported in the Harrison, Crawford, Chadron, Arthur and Mullen areas.

In the Holdrege, McCook, Imperial, North Platte and Sidney areas, snowfall ranged from two to three inches.

Packed snow caused hazardous highways in all those sections for a time Thursday, according to John McMeekin, maintenance engineer for the State Department of Roads.

Rain mixed with light snow fell in the capital city where precipitation totaled .12 of an inch.

Friday's forecast calls for only a slight chance for scattered snow in the state.

Lander, Wyo., was buried under 10 inches of snow, with five inches falling in six hours. Sheridan, Wyo., had nine inches of snow on the ground. Fraser, Colo., six inches and Lewistown, Mont., five.

The students were returning from a weekend trip to St. Louis, Mo., where they had attended a Canadian students reunion.

A memorial service for the two losing their lives will be held in Weller Chapel on Concordia's campus at Seward Monday at 9:30 p.m. Both were juniors who transferred here from Concordia College, Edmonton, Alberta, in September.

Kansas-Nebraska Increased Net Income 11% In 9 Months

Hastings — In the nine months ended Sept. 30, 1967, Kansas-Nebraska Natural Gas Company increased its net income by more than 11%, on an increase in operating revenues of 7%.

Kansas-Nebraska currently is engaged in a legal battle against Kaneb Pipe Line Company, of Houston, Tex., which owns about 19% of the common stock and is attempting to force a merger of the two firms, officials said.

Thomas Creigh, Jr., president of Kansas-Nebraska, reported to shareholders Thursday that consolidated net income for the nine months rose to $3,946,198, compared with $3,527,273 for the same period last year. Earnings per common share increased to $1.55, versus $1.37 in the 1966 nine months.

Operating revenues of the company — which serves wholesale and retail customers with natural gas in a wide area of Kansas, Nebraska, Colorado and Wyoming—increased to $30,617,113 for the nine months, compared with $28,446,499 in the 1966 period.

For the 12 months ended Sept. 30, 1967, net income was $5,722,596, or $2.26 per common share, compared with $4,930,700, or $1.92 per common share, in the previous year.

'Stock Raid'

Reporting to shareholders on what he termed the "stock raid" being conducted by Kaneb Pipe Line Company, Creigh stated that "Kaneb management has as its aim no less than a take-over of our company on its own terms." Kaneb has acquired, "with borrowed funds," approximately 479,000 Kansas-Nebraska common shares, or about 19% of the shares outstanding, he stated.

The contest for control currently is being waged in U.S. District Courts in Kansas City and Lincoln, where Kansas-Nebraska has accused Kaneb of violating both the Clayton Anti-Trust Act and the Securities Exchange Act in its attempts to force a merger of the two companies.

Meanwhile, it was announced in Lincoln that the federal court hearing on Kansas-Nebraska's request for a preliminary injunction to block the merger move will be held at 9:30 a.m. Thursday, Nov. 9.

Kansas-Nebraska filed the suit Wednesday against Kaneb and its controlling company, Pipe Line Technologists, Inc., of Houston.

Young said Stiles was to be taken before U.S. Commissioner Russell Herman in Los Angeles on bank robbery charges.

Some $10,000 was taken in the bank holdup.

'75 Hereford Bulls Sell For $80,090

. . . At Monahan Sale

Hyannis (AP) — Seventy-five Hereford bulls were sold at auction in the first production sale of the Monahan Cattle Co. for $80,090, or an average of $1,063.

Twenty-seven bulls sold for more than $1,000.

In addition 39 females sold for $11,930 or an average of $306, bringing total receipts to $92,020. Buyers from Iowa, Nebraska, Utah and Kentucky swelled the crowd to capacity.

Second top price in the sale was paid by Lyle Phipps of Whitman, who gave $3,000 for one bull and third high was $2,650 paid by Lacklaff Cattle Company of Bassett.

Floyd Arrowsmith of Bassett, P. R. Christensen of Raymond and C. C. Nelson of Bristow all paid more than $2,000 for bulls.

Wheat Price Drop Seen By NU Economist

Sidney (AP) — Wheat producers can expect the cash price of hard winter wheat to average 25 to 30 cents a bushel lower in 1967-68 than in the previous year, Dr. Everett Peterson, agricultural economist at the University of Nebraska, said Thursday.

In an address at the Nebraska Wheat Show, Peterson said actual return to producers would be increased about 50 cents a bushel this year from certificate payments under the wheat program.

He predicted that seasonal price gains in the next six months will no more than cover storage cost unless the world situation changes.

Tiemann Speaks

Gov. Norbert Tiemann told a noon luncheon audience of about 250 that Nebraska is "now investing reasonably large amounts of money in ourselves," from new tax revenues.

In his brief talk he said economic development, education and research and mental health are getting dividends from the new tax money.

About 150 attended a series of panel discussions Thursday morning.

EVENTS
IN PERSPECTIVE

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

"Confusing" might be the best description of the 90th Congress as it approaches adjournment. The Congress and White House have been locked in a battle over economy which neither of them seems likely to win.

President Johnson has not received and will not get all that he has requested of Congress but total spending is not likely to be far off what the President asked for. In a great many areas, Congress had done a lot of talking but still given the administration much of what it wanted.

At the end of last week, Congress finalized action on a $10,139,473,000 appropriation for independent federal agencies and the Department of Housing and Urban Development. This was only $681 million less than the President had requested.

The bill did contain the President's rent supplement program and model cities program. Of the total cut in the bill, half came out of the hide of these two proposals.

The administration lost another half billion dollars in the $4.5 billion appropriation for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration but the total was still respectable.

The administration is doing well even though getting less than requested in funds as they are likely to be appropriated for the Labor and Health, Education and Welfare Departments and for public works and Atomic Energy Commission appropriations.

In agriculture, interior and defense appropriations, the administration received virtually all it requested. And this week, the deadlock seems to have been broken for a substantial boost in Social Security benefits and a continuation of foreign aid.

The aid program will be less than Johnson wanted, particularly on the military side, but it is again clearing the congressional hurdle.

It remains to be seen at what level Congress will fund the various anti-poverty programs under the Office of Economic Opportunity but our feeling is that the programs will be extended. In the area of military salaries and domestic military spending, the economy-minded House has added nearly $5 billion more to the administration budget.

In attempts by Congress to limit spending, some government agencies are now operating in the dark. To guide them, Congress has attempted to establish temporary spending levels, until final appropriations are acted upon.

Testifying before a Senate committee on the subject was Budget Director Charles L. Schulze. He outlined $38 billion in non-defense "controllable appropriations" on which cuts have been proposed.

Congressional Quarterly reports that "on nearly every item Schultze listed — Army Corps of Engineers, National Institute of Health, Veterans Administration — one or more senators complained of the harm that would be done by cutting the program."

In short, Congress faces the age-old conflict between the desire to reduce federal spending and the need for federal programs. The desire to cut is one thing but where to cut is quite another.

There is also a conflict between the President's determination to do that which he considers to be essential and a substantial congressional feeling to do that which the public seems to want. But exactly what the public does want is also difficult to determine.

Public discontent with domestic affairs is obvious but how is it to be met? The ills of our society — crime, poverty, racial, etc.—are the product of neglect.

The trouble with cutting federal expenditures is that it represents further neglect and this is as hard a prospect to face as is increased spending. Congress will ultimately settle these questions with adjournment and the public will then render its verdict next November.

Political Speeches Same Everywhere

SAIGON — An early (or late) American president could have delivered the inaugural address Mr. Nguyen Van Thieu made here the other day and been proud of it.

The former top man of the 10-general military directorate that has given South Vietnam its first stable government in nearly a decade called for blood, sweat and tears at home, offered his hand of friendship to Ho Chi Minh if North Vietnam would stop its aggression, promised to route the rascals in high political and military places, swore to clean up the sometimes sluggish morals and luxuries of the big cities, and said it's high time the little man got a squarer deal.

The main difference between Thieu's speech and those delivered by G. Washington, A. Lincoln, W. Wilson, F. D. Roosevelt and J. F. Kennedy was that it was delivered under immediate threat of a bullet through his brain or a splintering nearby explosion of a grenade or bomb. History records no parallel to South Vietnam's five elections in the months preceding the inauguration of Thieu.

Let's give him the grace of a little time in which to make good his stirring promissory note.

Well, you've seen pictures on your telly of American Marines burning hamlets suspected of harboring VC. You're familiar with cases where government troops cuffed fellow Vietnamese. And you don't like napalm. Neither do I.

But let's pause for a moment to examine how the VC treat their own (and sometimes us):

—Grenades lobbed into cars stopped for traffic lights;

—Poisoned darts and needles used in dark theaters;

—Doors, drawers, and automobile engines booby-trapped;

—Poisoned or contaminated bamboo and metal slivers (punji) planted just under the surface in the rice paddies where barefoot paddy workers — men, women and children — will step on them;

—Grenades set in the night with trip-wires across the common paths where peasants and school children walk in the morning;

—Village leaders shot or beheaded;

—Children taught to roll grenades into restaurants and cafes;

—Villages harassed night after night with sporadic gunfire and loudspeaker taunts and threats;

—Newspapermen assassinated;

—Schools and health stations bombed;

—Busloads of civilians blown up by electrically controlled mines.

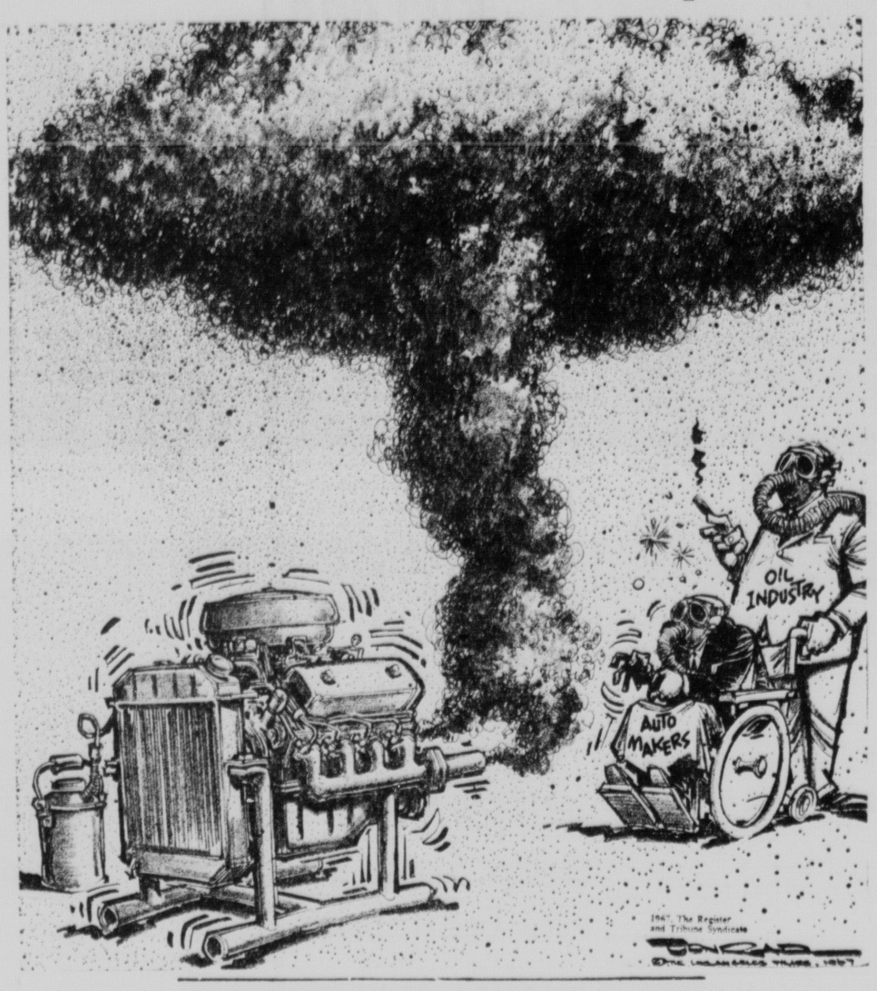
Dr. Strangelove: Or, How I Learned To Live With And Love The Internal Combustion Engine



Mirror Provides An Answer

America's young people are apparently becoming more and more sick of society. They show it through extreme actions — the use of drugs, loose sexual standards, general rebelliousness. We suppose the new generation has always been disillusioned by the old, but somehow the current youngsters seem more disenchanted than their fathers were at their age.

We can seek for causes, but they're as close as the nearest mirror.

It should be obvious that adults cannot expect good behavior from young people unless the adults first set a good example. The Adam Clayton Powells and Thomas Dodds don't help. The youngsters are justified in asking us whether we prefer an unshaven beatnik or a properly dressed politician who picks your pocket. We can wonder about the young people's morals, yet newsstands in Lincoln are full of girlie magazines and books with no message except pornography. The newsstands are owned and operated by adults, not teen-agers. And it is adults who sell alcohol to minors, make cheap, trashy movies, join the Ku Klux Klan and, yes, orders bomb raids on North Vietnam.

Look no further. We, the adults, are the cause for the younger generations disillusionment. And in most states, including Nebraska, we don't even give 'em a chance to vote. We send them to Vietnam, but we do not allow them into the polling place.

Such hypocrisy does not go unnoticed by keen-minded young people, most of whom are serious, clean, involved in the world and religiously inclined.

If the younger generation doesn't take us as seriously as we take them, well, why should they?

Journal's 100 Years Of Progress

Day in and day out, Lincoln's morning and evening newspapers breathe down one another's neck. The news in this area is a highly competitive product between The Evening Journal and The Lincoln Star.

Nothing has happened today to change this and the people of Lincoln and Nebraska continue to enjoy and benefit from the presence of two competing daily newspapers, a rarity in these times. But as of Thursday, The Evening Journal celebrated its 100th anniversary.

It is a time at which The Star is proud to salute its competitor, to state that those 100 years have been years of constructive influence upon the community on the part of The Journal. In earlier days as both a morning and evening publication and now in the evening field, The Journal has subscribed to the highest ideals of its profession.

To say that it has never been wrong would be foolish as it is an insitution composed of human beings. But its motives have not been subject to question and its efforts have been devoted to building Lincoln and the State of Nebraska into an area of improved opportunity and human enrichment.

The Journal has consistently pursued the goals of natural resources development, of governmental integrity and high citizen responsibility. Through the years, its ownership has come to contribute directly of its financial resources to projects, programs and people aimed toward a better way of life for all.

All of this encompasses the responsibility that rests upon the press—the responsibility to serve the cause of human freedom, dignity and progress. The Journal has reason to be proud of the manner in which it has met this responsibility during its long 100 years of history.

Detroit Versus California In Smog Battle; Senate Generates Its Own Brand Of Smog

WASHINGTON—The clean-air bill to curb exhaust fumes, now up for debate in the House of Representatives, features a battle between Rep. John Dingell, the Detroit Democrat, a disciple of the automobile industry, and Rep. Edward R. Roybal, Los Angeles Democrat, a battler against smog in Southern California.

Dingell, who has an altruistic record on most matters, wants to nullify an amendment introduced by Sen. George Murphy, R-Calif., and adopted by the Senate, 88 to 0, permitting California to impose stricter standards on automobiles for curbing exhaust fumes than those fixed by the federal government. Murphy and Roybal argue that California is several years ahead of Washington in curbing automobile exhaust.

California, say the West Coast congressmen, has no objection to seeing the federal government set standards, but it doesn't want to be held back by those standards.

The man who has masterminded Congressman Dingell's lobbying move is Lloyd Cutler, attorney for the auto industry and one of the smartest lawyers in Washington. Cutler is adroit at pulling wires, but he has sometimes pulled too hard and in the wrong places.

Last summer, for instance, he turned up in the office of Rep. Lionel Van Deerlin of San Diego, accompanied by a representative of Kaiser Industries. It happens that Kaiser Industries is a major client of Lloyd Cutler, and also has a shipyard in Van Deerlin's district. Thus Cutler was taking the representative of one client and using him to pressure the congressman on behalf of another client. Van Deerlin was outraged. Last week he retaliated with a speech on the House floor in which he denounced the auto lobby.

Van Deerlin called it an "arrogant campaign" and described the lobbyists as a "swarm from Detroit zeroing in on the clean-air act."

"I invite colleagues to join in rolling back the pall of smog which these slick operators have sought to spread," said the congressman from the Southern California.

There are few chores a senator dreads more than presiding over the Senate, imprisoned in the throne-like leather chair behind the marble rostrum—a captive audience of one, sentenced to listen to the dreary oratory of his colleages.

The unwanted assignment is usually thrust upon freshmen senators. Thus visitors in the spectators' gallery, who have been taught in school that the vice president presides over the Senate, usually find the august leather chair occupied by Sen. Ernest Hollings, D-S.C., Sen. William Spong Jr., D-Va., or some other unfamiliar figure.

Indeed, Vice President Humphrey has put in only 23 hours, eight minutes behind the lectern since Congress convened in January. The most solo hours in the chair have been credited to Sen. Hollings, who has sat through 159 hours, eight minutes of senatorial speech-making since January 10. Senator Spong has been stuck with the gavel for 90 hours, 45 minutes. The third-longest endurance record has been set by another freshman, Sen. Harry Byrd Jr., D-Va., who has chalked up 74 hours, 7 minutes.

Senior senators, of course, are expected mercifully to relieve the freshmen after they have been put through a particularly long or excruciating ordeal in the chair. Every excuse known to politicians, however, has been offered to get out of the assignment.

One of the most successful at keeping out of the high seat has been Sen. Allen Ellender, the Louisiana traveler, who doesn't like to stay long in any one place. He has presided for a grand total of five minutes since January. Sen. Paul Fannin, R-Ariz., has managed to get through the year so far with only one minute on the rostrum — scarcely long enough to bang the gavel.

It's not that the presiding senators don't appreciate the oratory of their colleagues, many of whom are in great demand as speakers around the country. It's just that hot air is in such abundance on Capitol Hill that, well, enough's enough.

The air senators inhale seems to go through some mysterious chemical process which causes it to come out hot and gaseous, providing the Senate with its own special kind of pollution. Those who breathe it every day prefer the minimum.

Include Us In—Or Out

WASHINGTON — Why, you might reasonably ask, is it easier to pass a driving test than a college board examination? The answer is that a college board examination is an exclusion process while a driving test is an inclusion process.

The result, if not the purpose of the college entrance test is to exclude from college a certain number of persons; specifically, that large excess of applicants for which the colleges lack space.

This is quite different from the function of the driving test. Detroit, after all, has four wheels for every person willing to take his chances with a finance company, and plenty more to boot. Economics, therefore, dictates that everyone capable of getting the key into the ignition be subjected to a test that will assure him the right to do so.

In logical terms, it is senseless. The man admitted to college is merely licensed to let a bit of light into his brain, but the man licensed to drive is empowered to operate a large, fast and deadly piece of machinery among chickens and small children. The first requires a knowledge of Cicero and quadratic equations; the second requires only the cunning to get around the block without loosening a policeman's molars.

Obviously, America has reached a sociological decision of some importance; to wit, that everyone should be entitled to drive but not to attend college. The relative difficulty of college entrance examinations and the ease of the usual driving test merely reflect society's genius for inventing tests that will enforce even the most irrational policy decisions.

Life is filled with exclusion processes like the college entrance exam, and Americans, with their talent for social improvisation, have developed a matching series of inclusion processes, like the driving test, to keep the excluded content. Thus, the person excluded from college cannot conclude that the county is turning its back on him. Not as long as it lets him pile into his heap and drive to Tijuana and back.

It would be mistaken to blame old bugaboo society for the exclusion process. It is people who seem to like it. People seem to enjoy things more when they know a lot of other people have been left out on the pleasure.

There is, for example, the highly rigorous exclusion process of the Broadway hit. The test requires proof of ability to produce tickets on demand for the musical smash of the season. Failure to pass this one has crushed a million egos and cost more than one public relations man his job. How many people who saw Barbra Streisand in "Funny Girl" enjoyed the show as much as telling other people they had seen it? (The compensating inclusion process in entertainment, incidentally, is television. Note exclusive people's fondness for pronouncing it worthless.)

One of the more irritating exclusion processes is the source-of-income test which the government gives to exclude certain people from taxes. Those who can pass the test by collecting their income from interest on municipal bonds, oil wells and such are excluded from the burden of helping to finance the government. The opposing inclusion process in this case is the Social Security benefit, which may be collected by any taxpayers who do not prematurely succumb to middle-aged bankruptcy.

Socially, the exclusion process is applied even in the criminal world. The test here is whether the rascal knows his constitutional rights. Those who can pass it are awarded lawyers and bail. Those who can't are included in jail.

Nowadays an interesting development is occurring. Certain groups that have traditionally been victimized by various exclusion processes are creating new exclusion processes of their own. These are designed to exclude the very people who, until just recently, have been doing the excluding. Everybody, they are discovering, can enjoy that elite sensation by making an exclusive virtue of his previous exclusion.

Thus we have the youth cult with its fearful over-30 test automatically excluding half the population from the delightful sensation of moral rectitude. Groups which benefit from the new exclusion processes are displeased with society and want to rebuild it. This is a good goal, but it is discouraging to see them rolling out the same blueprint that was used for the old.

Student Poll

Lincoln, Neb.

I would like to object to the way in which The Star reported the results of the student poll on Vietnam held October 30 at the University of Nebraska. From reading The Star's headline, the casual reader would assume that the 40% of the students who voted for escalation comprise the largest bloc on campus.

An analysis of the alternatives and the votes received by each, however, indicate an entirely different situation. Any reasonable interpretation would list Options No. 3 and No. 4 (an unconditional end to bombing along with recognition of the Viet Cong, and total withdrawal, respectively) as "peace" options opposed to the policy of escalation, the present policy (Option No. 2), and, by the by, the editorial policy of The Star.

Whereas only 19% of those voting favor the present policy, an overwhelming 81% are opposed. And of this 81%, there is no clearcut majority for the "hawks" as The Star headline implied, since 41% were in favor of escalation and 40% were in favor of some sort of meaningful peace initiative on the part of the United States.

A New Trend

Lincoln, Neb.

I heartily agree with the sentiments of "Observer" (Star, Oct. 30) about Christmas. However, I would like to remind the writer that where I live—Albuquerque, New Mexico—we have worked for and worked with, side by side, the Navajo, Pueblo and Hopi Indians. These are the southwestern tribes in the heart of Indian country.

I have lived and worked in Albuquerque for the past 40 years. During this time, the Cathedral of St. John has sponsored the charity program of the women of the church. There are five such groups. The women have helped toward the support of a mission hospital for Indians in Farmington, New Mexico. They pay the salaries of the hospital staff and Episcopal priest, supervisor of the project. The teen-age group (YPSL) raised the funds to purchase a station wagon to transport out-patients and to haul supplies of food and medicine to the hospital. This they did last year. One ladies' group makes hospital gowns for adult and child patients and stuffed toys for the children.

Perhaps people in other states will use these suggestions for their Christmas project, and start a new trend for service to our neighbors! Merry Christmas to all!

VISITOR TO LINCOLN

The Spending

Lincoln, Neb.

I read in the morning Star that Tiemann says the air department funds should be spent for a plane for him to get around in.

Has anyone told him that Nebraska taxpayers are fed up with his spending ideas? Doesn't Mr. Tiemann know that a pilot is needed, fuel and oil amount to plenty, and there are repairs, insurance, etc. that are not free?

Mr. Tiemann wanted an office in Omaha. He had the expensive gold-embossed wallpaper removed from the mansion. He rushed through the sales and income tax bills—and it still doesn't satisfy him. What kind of reasoning is that for a governor?

What Nebraska needs is an election every year so we could save embarrassment through an impeachment process by not voting for a candidate who has not proven himself to the taxpayer.

New Playhouse

Lincoln, Neb.

On behalf of the directors of The Lincoln Community Playhouse, I want to express regret to our many friends who were unable to obtain seats at the recent playhouse production, "Guys and Dolls." While we did include two extra performances in the series, we were unable to extend the run beyond the closing night because of rehearsals scheduled for the next production.

We are working hard on plans for a new home for the playhouse. With the larger capacity which will then be available, we hope we can avoid those disappointments in the future.

House Passes Program To Combat Air Polution

© New York Times Service

Washington — The House passed Thursday night a broad clean air bill after California won a signal victory over the automobile industry in a fight over control of exhaust pollution. The vote was 362 to 0.

The bill, one of the major pieces of legislation President Johnson wants, would authorize a three-year program to combat air pollution by all sources. It would empower the federal government to step in with cleanup programs if the states failed to act.

An almost identical bill was passed July 18 by the Senate. The Senate bill, however, would authorize a $700 million program against the House bill of $428 million. But a compromise on the figures is expected in a Senate-House conference to assure final enactment and the President's signature.

Before final passage, California rolled over Detroit, 512 to 58, on the issue of controlling pollution from motor vehicle exhaust.

California representatives succeeded in restoring to the Senate-approved bill the state's right to maintain its stringent smog control standards in place of any federal auto emission standards that might be set.

The House Commerce Committee had deleted the privilege granted to California in the Senate bill and substituted a requirement that all states meet federal standards.

Sen. McCarthy May Challenge Johnson On War

Washington (UPI) — Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, D-Minn., said Thursday, he might be a presidential primary candidate next year to challenge President Johnson on Vietnam.

"We might impose a policy change on the President," he said in an interview. "In any event, the consequences could be no worse than what we have now."

McCarthy, a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, dismissed as unrealistic Johnson's appeal Wednesday for a unified nation as the best way to encourage Hanoi to talk peace.

Many Soviet Writers Resent Censorship

Conservatives Have Power

A strong faction of political conservatives holds a foothold in the Politburo and the highest echelons of the party. It possesses allies in the literary apparatus — the writers union's secretariat, the directorship of magazines and publishing houses.

It was they who organized the attack on Boris Pasternak when he was awarded the Nobel prize for "Doctor Zhivago." It was they who stage-managed the outburst by Khrushchev in 1962-63 against young writers and painters and their older supporters like the late Ilya Ehrenburg.

Solzhenitsyn has the solid support of the talented writers in Russia — poets like Yevgeny Yevtushenko, Andrei Voznesensky and Bella Akhmadulina. They and young prose writers like Vasily Aksyonov, Yuri Nagibin, Yuri Kazakov and Anatoly Gladilin have no doubt about two propositions — that Solzhenitsyn is the greatest Russian writer alive, and that the censorship must go.

In fact, agreement has been reached that Solzhenitsyns "The Cancer Ward" will be published — after the Nov. 7 anniversary. Solzhenitsyn's papers have been returned by the police. Most Russian writers seem certain that the censorship will go — sometime in 1968.

This does not mean that the literary battle is over or that the forces of creative freedom have won. It is a battle whose origins go back long before the Bolshevik revolution to the long struggle of poets and writers against czarist repressions.

On Front Line

Images of guns and warfare recur in the speech of the young Soviet writers. They consider themselves on the skirmish line of a battle that is fought not only with words. They are aware of the bloody wounds, the mortal sacrifices that litter Russia's literary past in times only too recent. They are obsessed with the knowledge that under Stalin the most gifted artists of a creative nation were wiped out.

The lives of the older generation of Soviet writers who survived those times were scarred indelibly. Some, like Ehrenburg, dedicated themselves to a twin purpose — to re-establishing the truth about Stalin's victims and to educating the new Russian generation in the artistic traditions of Russia and the west.

Generational differences in Soviet literature are great. While Ehrenburg, and Aleksandr Tvardovsky (editor of the liberal magazine Novy Mir) and others have defended the right of young writers to creative freedom, they have not always approved of the use the young men and women made of it.

Ehrenburg praised Russia's young poets, but wondered what work Yevtushenk Voznesensky and Akhmadulina had done that equalled the poetry written at their ages by Pasternak, Akhmatova and Isvetayeva.

The older writer with whom the young feel the most sympathy is Valentin Katayer. They particularly like his half-humorous, half-serious concept of writing in what he called the style of "mauvism," from the French word "mauvais" or bad.

A mauvist writer makes no effort to prettify his style or his subject. He is completely natural yet artistic.

Of course, Katayev said, there could be no talk of censorship and art. How could true writing and censorship co-exist?

It was a question which had troubled Russian writers for 100 years. It was the basic demand of the young reformers and revolutionaries who fought so long against czarism and thought they had won in 1917.

Now another 50 years had passed—50 years of the communist regime, which so many had believed in 1917 would liberate the arts. The hopes had proved vain.

But in 1967 there was every sign that the young writers of Russia and their allies in the older generation had lost neither faith nor confidence that the future would bring them the fulfillment they so long had awaited.

Olson Resigns As Secretary Of State School Lands Unit

John P. Olson announced Thursday his resignation as secretary of the State Board of Educational Lands and Funds, effective Jan. 1 or very shortly thereafter.

He said he has accepted an opportunity to enter private business.

Olson has served for three years as the board's secretary, the chief fulltime administrative position in the agency which administers state school lands and funds.

In a resignation letter to board members, Olson said he has come to admire "the dedication and unselfish service" given by board members.

"You have established an enviable record as trustees and I am proud to have been associated with you in this very important work," he wrote.

Olson also paid tribute to the competence and dedication of the board's staff of employes and said "my sincere hope for our educational trust is that it will always have the excellent management you have given it in recent years."

Olson, previously of Comstock, had been a land appraiser for the board when tapped in 1965 to succeed the resigned Elmer H. Malin as board secretary.

Warning Is Sparked By Gas Mishap

A gasoline fire at Wyuka Cemetery in Lincoln Thursday morning also "sparked a warning concerning the use and storage of gasoline from Chief Fire Inspector DeWayne McIntyre of the Lincoln Fire Department.

McIntyre said Thursday's fire erupted when a cemetery employe was cleaning a lawn mower with gasoline. He said the employe was scraping grease with a file when a spark ignited the gasoline fumes.

"It was a near miss," said McIntyre. "Gasoline should never be used as a cleaning agent."

The inspector suggested Lincolnites remove gasoline from lawnmowers and outboard motors in the fall when such machines are stored for the season.

"No gas should be stored inside a home," he recommended. "If you have gas on hand now that won't be needed during the winter, the best place to store it is in your car's gas tank."

McIntyre noted that one gallon of gasoline vaporized "is equal in explosive force to 88 sticks of dynamite."

He also warned that a total volume of air containing only 2% gas vapor can be sparked into explosion.

"Any type of spark will do it," he said.

McIntyre said law requires a container housing a product with flammable vapors must bear a warning or caution label, and he urged all homeowners to check such containers carefully.

He said, for example, people usually do not realize the explosive potential of mastics used to secure floor or wall tile. He recommended when using such materials citizens turn off furnace and water heater flames, refrain from smoking and leave windows open.

OPPD, CPPD Might File For Joint-Line OK

Consumers Public Power District has notified the Nebraska Power Review Board that an application may be filed before year's end for authority to construct a 345-kilovolt transmission line connection between CPPD and the Omaha Public Power District (OPPD).

CPPD General Manager D. W. Hill said the line would be a joint CPPD-OPPD effort.

He said studies indicate the line is necesary to stabilize electrical transmission facilities in the state and provide backup for CPPD and OPPD nuclear power plants.

One possible routing being studied would run the line from the Moore substation south of Lincoln near Hallam, to another substation east of Lincoln, and on to OPPD's Ft. Calhoun substation.

Head Start Training Grant Told

The University of Nebraska has received a $177,854 federal grant to conduct continuous training programs for Project Head Start teachers during the next 12 months.

Twenty-four trainees from Nebraska, Colorado and Montana are attending the first in the series of training programs. Last summer the university received two grants for eight-week sessions for Project Head Start training programs.

The University of Nebraska is one of three institutions in this area which offer training under the Head Start Program to potential teachers and aides. Similar programs are offered by Stephens College in Missouri and Colorado State College at Greeley.

Project Head Start is financed through the federal government's Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO). Trainees' tuition, books, and housing are paid, and a stipend is provided.

The first trainee group, 21 women and 3 men, was selected by their local community action agency, which recommended them to the university. They will be trained to be teachers or teachers' aides for pre-school children from economically deprived families.

Program Outlined

The program involves discussion, study, guest lecturers, and extensive reading, in what Program Director Dr. Millicent Savery describes as "a program that provides a background of both understanding and practical experience." Trainees spend approximately 30% of their time working directly with children in Lincoln Head Start centers.

Study areas covered during the course are: staff, health, services, nutrition, daily program, volunteers, parents, social services, equipment and supplies, and points for parents.

Students trained at the university will return to their home areas and work in Head Start centers for pre-school children. The purpose of these centers is to help children who are disadvantaged because of low income.

Often these children start school with a limited experience background, lack of health care, and good nutrition, and deficient language skills. Margaret Paxton, a trainee from Durango, Colo., stated, "I have taught in public schools, and some of these children have a real language barrier."

Native Language

Other children speak a foreign language, so either the teacher or the aide must speak the native language of the child.

Miss Paxton added, "We are not trying to give the child just a head start; we're trying to give him an even start." To do this, potential teachers must learn to administer education, medical care, social services, and nutritional care.

Those trainees now studying at the university are:

Sheila Aspenmonte, Manzos, Colo.; Bonnie Bamsey and Shirley Lessert, Gordon; Frances Bearchum, Busby, Mont.; Teresa Casillo, Sara Contreras, Majorie Emery, Harriet Lang, Genevieve Sanchez, Cora Trevino, and Jean Vonsipka, Scottsbluff; Virginia Clinton, Sidney; Phyllis Conway, Billie Knaff, and Bette Jo Lunville, all of Lincoln.

Mayor Charges Riot Fomented

Washington (AP) — Houston Mayor Louie Welch accused antipoverty program employes Thursday of fomenting Negro unrest during months of racial turbulence in the Texas city.

Welch said he complained to Director Sargent Shriver and waited two months before the Office of Economic Opportunity replied with a denial of his charge.

But the Houston mayor told investigating senators the people of whom he complained have heen fired, and the area poverty organization reorganized

Welch testified before the Senate permanent investigations subcommittee a few hours after Houston Police Lt. M. L. Singleton told the group some antipoverty workers took to the streets to incite riots.

Welch said he wrote Shriver on May 24, a week after racial unrest exploded into a gun battle at Texas Southern University.

He asked whether the program encourages confrontation and conflict, and he specifically charged that three employes made such statements as these:

"—When is your racist mayor going to wake up to the fact that this town is going to burn down if he doesn't do something?

"—The shooting by students at TSU was justified because the white man has been oppressing the Negro for 300 years and now it is the black man's turn."

UAW Sets Chrysler Deadline

Detroit (UPI)—The United Auto Workers said Thursday it will strike Chrysler Corp,. the nation's third largest auto maker, at midnight Nov. 8 unless it wins a contract to match the record Ford Motor Co. pact.

Both the union and the company said they thought there was a possibility a settlement could be reached before the deadline.

The union, which had picked Chrysler as its next "strike target" last Saturday, handed the company its ultimatum at the end of a day of extensive bargaining that was carried on by eight subcommittees.

The main table talks will resume Saturday at 1 p.m., probably with UAW President Walter P. Reuther calling the shots in person.

Douglas Fraser, UAW vice president in charge of the Chrysler Department, announced the strike deadline. He said negotiations would continue in an effort to prevent a walkout.

Seth Blackwell Tells Jury He Doesn't Recall Stabbing

By GERRY SWITZER
Star Staff Writer

Seth Blackwell Sr., charged with second-degree murder in connection with the fatal stabbing of William "Bobby" Payne, told the jury Thursday, "I don't recall stabbing him."

Under cross-examination by Lancaster County Attorney Paul Douglas, Blackwell testified that he didn't remember reaching and getting a knife or stabbing anyone.

"If I did it, it was not to my knowledge. I don't know what happened — something happened — I don't know what," Blackwell said.

'Are You?'

Douglas asked the defendant, "You're not saying you didn't stab him, are you?"

"How do I know," Blackwell replied.

"Do you remember telling Inspector Sawdon at the Police Department that you took a knife out and stabbed Bobby," Douglas asked Blackwell, "to which he replied, "No."

"I never told Inspector Sawdon that I took a knife out and stabbed Bobby," he said.

Police Detective Robert Sawdon testified Thursday that in the presence of Douglas, Police Chief Joe Carroll, and his attorney, Norman Langemach, Blackwell related the events leading up to the incident.

Blocked Drive

He said Blackwell told them that he had parked his car at the rear of the house at 2425 Vine and that Bobby Payne had driven his car up to "block the driveway so he 'couldn't get out.'"

According to Sawdon, Blackwell said he had asked the victim to move his car and he had refused and words followed.

" 'Bobby got out of his car and charged me,' and Blackwell said he took a pocket knife out of his pocket and cut him (Payne)," Sawdon told the jurors.

Inspector Sawdon said he asked Blackwell to describe the knife and that the defendant said it was " 'a little pocket knife I'd had' " and indicated the blade was between two and three inches in length.

Didn't Know

When questioned about where the knife was, Sawdon said that Blackwell said he didn't know and thought he must have thrown it away somewhere.

Sawdon testified that a search by the police failed to turn up the knife.

He told the jurors that either he or Douglas asked Blackwell if he was ready to give them a statement of the facts he related to them in the interview, to which his attorney replied they'd " 'rather not' at that time."

Through agreement of the parties, that concluded the interview, Sawdon testified.

Couldn't

Blackwell, on direct examination by one of his attorneys, Farley Young, said he couldn't repeat the words Mr. Payne had used when he refused to move his car.

"Things happened so fast; we both had been drinking excessively and something happened," the defendant said.

On cross examination, he said the language was "abusive, offensive and threats."

"I don't know exactly what he said . . . awful I know, but I don't remember," Blackwell said.

In the early minutes of the trial Thursday, a brief recess was called when Blackwell jumped from his chair and began shouting unintelligible words until he was restrained by two Lancaster County deputy sheriffs who have been seated on either side of him throughout the trial.

Evidence is expected to be concluded Friday and the case will go to the jury Monday.

Lancaster District Judge William Hastings, who is presiding in the case, told the jurors that closing arguments would not be presented until Monday so that the jurors would not be deliberating over the weekend.

New Station, Channel 7, At Bassett Added To Nebraska ETV Network

Clayton Yeutter, administrative assistant to Gov. Norbert Tiemann, snipped the ribbon of dedication Thursday as a new station, KMNE-TV, Channel 7, of Bassett, was added to the Nebraska Educational Television Network.

Speaking at the dedication, Yeutter praised the ETV network, claiming its coverage of the debate on taxes during the last legislative session "was a wonderful experience for many people. For the first time many people were able to see their legislature."

Sen. Elvin Adamson of Valentine, one of the early supporters of ETV in Nebraska, told a luncheon audience, "If schools and people make full use of it, educational television can be one of the best educational bridges we have . . . I am still 100% for educational television in Nebraska."

Other speakers at the dedication included State Education Commissioner Dr. Floyd Miller, R. Eugene Kincanon, superintendent of Rock County High School, and Dr. A. Dean Gilg, Bassett Elementary School Board Member.

Following the ceremonies, the Cornhusker Broadcasting Corp. announced that it was presenting equipment to the ETV network worth $14,496. The gift consisted of transmission wire and sideband filter to be used at the Channel 12 station at Merriam.

Speaking for the company, A. James Ebel said, "This gift is made because of our interest in furthering the educational aspects, both in-school and adult, of the Nebraska Educational Television Network." The presentation was the third gift that Cornhusker Broadcasting has made to the ETV Network.

Appointed to a special nominating committee to fill vacant posts on the ETV Commission were: Gordon (Bud) Pentz, Beatrice; Dr. Theron B. Maxson, Hastings; Mrs. Maurice J. Frank and Howard Stalnaker, both of Omaha, and Dr. Miller, Lincoln.

Election Issues To Be Aired At Area Meetings In Lincoln

Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf said Thursday that four "area" meetings of the town hall variety have been set up for next week to allow Lincolnites to ask questions about the minimum housing standards code and the $5 million storm sewer bond issue.

Both the housing code and the bond issue will be voted on at a special election Nov. 14th.

"These area meetings are extremely necessary, so all citizens, especially those working during the day, will have an opportunity to ask factual questions on these two local issues which I feel need voter approval to make Lincoln a better and safer community in which to live," the mayor said.

The 8 p.m. meetings will begin Monday at Bethany Christian Church, 1645 N. Cotner, and will be followed with meetings Tuesday at Christ Methodist Church, 45th and A; Wednesday at Trinity Methodist Church, 1345 S. 16th and Thursday at City Hall, 10th and O.

The mayor's office said the locations were chosen because they are accessible to people living in all four quadrants of the city.

Schwartzkopf stressed that the meetings "are for the purpose of answering factual questions and not to get into any debate on the issues with a few opposition leaders."

He said City Council members and representatives of the city's law, public works, health, inspections and planning departments will be on hand.

"If these area meetings prove successful, my administration plans to use the approach again in the future in an effort to better inform our citizens on important local issues," the mayor said.

The Lincoln Telephone and Telegraph Company

POSTCARD by Stan Delaplane

A raw, rainy day in Japan. The inscrutable Oriental has become a good deal more scrutable. But—

"It is almost impossible for a Japanese to say no to you," said a local American. "The basic conversation of life is geared to asking questions so the person will not have to answer 'no' — even if he means no.

"You don't say, 'Do you want more tea?' You say, 'You wouldn't like more tea, would you?' Whether you do or don't want tea, you can answer 'yes.' The gesture or tone of voice says whether you want it or not."

☆ ☆ ☆

The Japanese businessman wears Western clothing. A Rotary button gleams in his lapel. He flips the paper first to the stock market pages. Orders a Scotch-soda before lunch.

"I would like to take you to lunch at our Industrial Club," said the Japanese. "We are very much worried about your new tariff policy."

I said: "You know, I don't write about business. In fact, I haven't heard about the new tariffs."

Now the Japanese gets inscrutable. Big smile. He is sizing me up in Japanese thinking. ("This American cat is putting himself down to be polite. Or, he is trying to duck without saying no.")

"I will telephone you in Tokyo." (He will let me think it over. If I have to say no, I won't say it. I will say I am sick.)

☆ ☆ ☆

"This works out all right among the Japanese," said the American. "They all know the rules and what's going on.

"But it drives the visiting American up the wall.

"He asks for something directly — Something the Japanese cannot do.

"The Japanese cannot admit he will not or cannot do it.

"He says yes. Then he goes 'sock' — doesn't come to the office. Until the American gives up and leaves town.

"You talk about Americans not wanting to get 'involved'! The Japanese spends all his life keeping from getting involved. Involvement is a threat to his whole social structure.

"The prospect of personal involvement in a situation not structured to everyday life paralyzes him.

☆ ☆ ☆

"A Japanese-style hotel may advertise in Western magazines. The beauty of the rooms. The elegance of the service. But if you call up and try to get a room, they find they are full. So sorry.

"You are a Westerner. You don't know the rules. Suppose you didn't take your shoes off at the door. The manager, the staff are faced with an unbearable dilemma. They would be 'involved..'

"It would be unbearably impolite to tell you to take your shoes off.

"It would be hideous if they let you walk in with your shoes on.

"Why do they advertise then? It's very with it in Japan to be as Western as possible. We do everything just like they do in America is what the ad intends to say.

"Only they simply couldn't stand doing it."

☆ ☆ ☆

This attitude keeps most tourists out of the best Japanese inns—they call them ryokans. There is a Ryokan Association now and some have adapted to Americans.

The Japanese Western-style hotels lack something. I don't know what. The plumbing is Hilton. The service is excellent, even better than American hotels.

It is not the same as a hotel at home. You get the feeling you are in a play. All of you are actors. The curtain will come down, and everybody will go home.

☆ ☆ ☆

The Japanese inn seems more of a stage setting. But you don't get the feeling everybody's in an act.

The maid shuffles you to the bath. Peels you like an orange. Soaps you up and down. Rinses you. Puts you in the deep dish bath. And then sits down to read the morning paper to you.

Completely unreal. ("What am I doing here?") But it gets you. (And I never conld say "no.")

Court Asked To Block Vote On Housing Code

By GERRY SWITZER
Star Staff Writer

Lancaster District Judge Herbert Ronin set 10 a.m. Monday for hearing on a temporary restraining order sought in a suit filed Thursday to block a special city election Nov. 14 on the controversial minimum housing standards ordinance.

Lincoln Attorney Merrill R. Reller, who filed the suit against the City of Lincoln, alleges that the proposed ordinance, No. 9231, if passed would be unconstitutional and void and asks the court to declare it such.

He further seeks a restraining order and temporary and permanent injunctions against the defendants' proceeding with the proposed special election or conducting same or applying any public funds to the furtherance of same.

Strong Support

In response to the suit, Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf said it was his hope that "we have strong citizens' support not only for approval of the ordinance but for the right of the citizens to vote on this question."

He said, "I think it is the basic position of the City of Lincoln to give strong support to the Lincoln Housing code in order to provide the best city in which to live, work and raise our children."

"However, I also feel the citizens of the city have provided in their own local constitution that the minority is entitled to the right of referendum, a fundamental right provided in our City Charter, which I have a solemn right to uphold and I will do so in this case,"

Legal Steps

He stated he has directed the law department to take all necessary legal steps to guarantee the rights of the citizens to vote on the issue.

The plaintiff contends that if the ordinance is passed at the special election, it would be wholly void and unenforceable because it violates the fourth, fifth, sixth and 14th amendments of the U.S. Constitution, and also violates the Nebraska Constitution.

Reller contends the ordinance specifically violates the constitution by allowing inspectors to enter homes without warrants.

Expense

Reller alleges that the expense of the special election of between $18,000 and $20,000 would be a total loss paid out of public funds, and if the ordinance is passed that large future expenses will be incurred by the public by appointment of a paid staff and workmen who will be paid out of public funds to enforce the ordinance.

The petition cites numerous city ordinances which the plaintiff contends "are adequate, proper and constitutional . . ." to "fully accomplish all necessary, lawful regulations of the matters sought to be regulated by the proposed ordinance 9231.

Reller contends that the efforts of the defendants to pass the ordinance so soon after a like ordinance was defeated by a vote of the people "is not prompted by a necessity, but is the first part of a plan and scheme of the defendants to take from the people the right to control their homes, businesses and private affairs . . ."

'Unlawful'

He alleges that placing the ordinance before the people in a special and not general election, "is an unlawful attempt to gain an advantage by having a special election, where the majority of the voters who would vote in a general election will not go to the polls because of it being a special election and the only matter to be voted on is the matter of passing ordinance 9231."

According to the petition, "the real reason for putting the ordinance on a ballot to be voted on at this time is not due to any local need for urgency . . . but has been at the urging of non-resident and outside 'do-gooders' who will hereinafter be called 'outside experts' who have alleged federal funds at their disposal for Lincoln and who represent that if said ordinance is not passed in the form that it is being presented in Ordinance 9231 that these certain monies of the federal government which are under the control of these outside experts . . . will not be forthcoming . . ."

Reller alleges that the ordinance seeks to control before the condition or need exists notwithstanding the "probable cause provision" of the Fourth Amendment which provides that before a citizen's privacy and home can be invaded, probable cause must exist.

Ditch Problem

A second cause of action in the suit seeks a court order requiring the City of Lincoln to properly maintain a drainage ditch allegedly obtained from Reller and adjacent to his property in northeast Lincoln.

According to the petition, Reller granted the city an easement to the property in 1956 and the city constructed a large open sewer ditch extending more than one-half mile through his lands in a north and south direction.

He contends the city has failed to keep the sewer ditch in a safe and sanitary condition and it has resulted in decrease in the valuation of his property.

He asks the court to enjoin and restrain, both temporarily and permanently, the city from maintaining the ditch to which he refers as a "nuisance" and for damages totaling $15,000.

Job Of Ed Board Is To 'Provide Facilities'

The board of education's role in developing maximum student potentiality is to provide adequate facilities for professional educators to get the job done, board member Don Biehn told the Lincoln Area Council PTA Thursday.

"We have to turn this problem over to competent educators. Our job is to create a good atmosphere and provide adequate facilities, books, equipment and perhaps some encouragement to get the goals accomplished," he said.

In the panel discussion by four Lincoln school board members on what develops student potentiality, Biehn added that every innovative education proposal cannot always receive board approval.

"But, he said, "we have to give a great deal of consideration to the opinions of people who are devoting their lives to education" when proposals come up for approval and funding.

Dr. Scott Norton of the University of Nebraska narrated the panel which also included Dr. John Lux, Ed Copple and Robert Magee.

Scooter Marathon

London (AP) — Thirty-six members of Britain's Royal Air Force stayed down to earth long enough to push a child's scooter from one end of Britain to the other to raise funds for the RAF benevolent fund. The distance was 869 miles from the northeastern tip of Scotland to Land's End at the southwestern end of England. Relays of men made the jorney in 121 hours and 40 minutes.

Democrats Start New Finance Committee

Washington (AP) — House Democrats are setting up their own finance committee to raise cash for next year's congressional races, but they heatedly deny this means a split with the White House-controlled Democratic National Committee.

Senate Democrats were reported also to be planning separate fund-raising efforts next year, leaving the national committee the task of building was chest for President Johnson's expected re-election bid.

Although relations between Democrats on Capitol Hill and the national committee have been shaky in recent years, Democratic officials rejected any notion the new development indicates a rift.

The new House finance committee "was not brought about because we didn't help them, not because they were mad at us, but because they felt they needed to have a continuing program," said John Criswell, national committee acting treasurer.

In 1960, the national committee and the two congressional campaign committees reached an agreement under which the national committee was to handle all fund raising and then supply congressional candidates with campaign cash.

The arrangement obviously did not work well. Some congressmen complained privately that the national committee failed to supply the promised aid. And party officials grumbled that congressional leaders distributed the campaign funds without sufficient concern for needs of candidates in close contests.

The new group, to be known as the "Democratic Congressional Finance Committee," will operate year-round, seeking funds in all parts of the nation.

Churchill Loses First Time Out

London (AP) — Winston Spencer Churchill, grandson of Britain's wartime leader, lost a close race Thursday night in his first entry into the political arena.

The voters in two other contests for the House of Commons administered a stinging rebuff to the Labor government.

BRIDGE

rules for the rebid

B. Jay Becker

You are the dealer, neither side vulnerable, and have opened One Diamond. Partner responds Three Diamonds. What would you bid now each of the following four hands?

1. ♠ KJ ♥ AQ7 ♦ KQ863 ♣ KJ4
2. ♠ 93 ♥ KJ ♦ A9872 ♣ AQ93
3. ♠ K85 ♥ J7 ♦ AJ94 ♣ KQ82
4. ♠ AQ4 ♥ 3 ♦ J87532 ♣ AK7

1. Four notrump. A small slam is practically certain; a grand slam is a distinct possibility. The number of aces partner holds is the key to how far to go, and you therefore invoke the Blackwood convention. Partner can normally be expected to have from 13 to 16 high-card points, which puts you in or near the 33-point zone generally required for twelve tricks.

If partner responds five hearts, showing two aces, you bid six diamonds, knowing that the opponents have an ace. If partner responds five spades, showing three aces, you bid five notrump, calling for kings. If the response to this is six diamonds showing one king, you bid seven diamonds.

2. Four diamonds. Here the opening bid is only slightly above minimum and you indicate this by rebidding in minimum terms. If partner then bids five diamonds, you pass.

But if partner evinces interest in a slam by bidding four hearts or spades over four diamonds, you cooperate with him by bidding five clubs. This cannot be regarded as a very strong bid because four diamonds has already announced a minimum hand. Five clubs simply says that your opening bid was not bedrock minimum and included values in clubs.

3. Three notrump. This is not a pleasant rebid, considering the weakness in hearts, but it offers a better chance for game than any other bid.

It is possible that the best contract is five diamonds, but there is no sensible way of learning whether the eleven-trick contract is superior without going past three notrump in order to find out. The 4-4-3-2 distribution strongly suggests notrump, despite the danger in hearts. If partner accepts three notrump, the odds strongly favor making it.

4. Four clubs. A slam is decidedly possible, despite the minimum high-card values, and is surely worth investigating. Thus, partner may have something like: ♠ 83 ♥ AJ5 ♦ AK106 ♣ Q652 an this close-to-minimum three diamond response would provide an excellent shot for six.

If partner's response to four clubs were four diamonds, you would be entitled to make another slam try by bidding four spades. If partner now bid five diamonds, ignoring both invitations to a slam, you would have to respect his signoffs and abandon the slam.

Note that Blackwood is not used on this type of hand. Learning whether partner has one or two aces does not tell you whether twelve tricks are available.

ABBY: don't meddle

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Some time ago I did a foolish thing and confided to my husband's boss how depressed my husband was because he thought he was next in line for a promotion, but was passed over in favor of a new man they brought into the company who didn't know a thing about the business.

It seems my confidence was betrayed, and it got back to my husband.

I am most concerned for my husband's state of mind as he says he has done all that he can to get a promotion, and he is terribly hurt.

I have him practically talked into leaving the company and going with a competing firm to help him get over the disappointment. He hesitates because he's been with his present firm a long time and will lose all his benefits if he leaves. But I feel that his happiness is more important than the money.

Abby, do you think perhaps I am meddling too much? Or should I tell my husband to forget everything I said about changing jobs, and to stay where he is?

UPSET WIFE

DEAR UPSET: Yes, I think you are meddling too much. It's good for a man to have the kind of wife he can talk TO — but she souldn't try to talk him INTO anything. Let your husband make his own decisions. And don't "confide" his feelings to anyone else.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "SCHOLAR" IN SYRACUSE: There is some cooperation between bird and beast. The stork and the wolf usually work the same neighborhood.

How has the world been treating you? Unload your problems on Dear Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal., 90069. For a personal, unpublished reply, inclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Costumes As Works Of Art In 'Art Of Fashion' Exhibit

BY JOHN CANADAY
(c) New York Times News Service

New York — Last Wednesday the Metropolitan Museum opened an exhibition of feminine costume called "The Art Of Fashion," and on Friday, the Carnegie Institute in Pittsburgh opened its 1967 International Exhibition of Painting and Sculpture. For anyone interested in art and equipped with a normal set of responses, the coincidence can establish a connection: the Metropolitan's avowed premise — that fashion must be taken seriously as an art — parallels the unavowed but inherent premise of all the big internationals, which is that art can no longer be thought of seriously except in terms of fashion.

A third show, the Guggenheim International, which opened earlier, supports the argument with an exhibition that could as well have been called "Fashions In Sculpture."

Of the three, the Metropolitan's show is far and away the most beautiful, partly because of its superb installation, but mostly because these costumes (the word is inadequate), displayed not as period pieces but purely as works of art, mounted like jewels or like sculpture and having some of the qualities of both — these costumes, in comparison with the painting and sculpture in the other exhibitions, include easily the highest proportion of imaginatively designed and well-crafted objects.

"Designed" is an important word just here, since it seems to reject humanistic philosophical values as the concern of painters and sculptors and judges them only as designers — manipulators of color, patterns and materials for their own sakes rather than as means toward the expressive ends that art once served. This rejection is not entirely just, since there are artists working today who are concerned with something more than this manipulation. But it is not unjust to the big international shows, where the humanists, when invited to show at all, are largely obliterated by the fashion-setting designers.

As Internationals go, the Carnegie this year is pretty good, but this still means that it is like an enormous cocktail party that turns the critic into a kind of gossip columnist who goes through the exhibition recognizing the guests — 329 of them this time — hoping to spot an attractive newcomer, making notes on how the old-timers are looking, and later checking himself against the catalogue to see if certain artists really weren't included this time or whether he just missed them in the crush.

But in the end, the fact that some artists who should have been included aren't in the Carnegie, and others are included who might better have been left out, makes no difference except whatever difference it makes to the artists themselves.

The great thing about the Metropolitan's show of women's clothes is that these items of commerce, not thought of by the designers as anything that would exist after a season or two, and certainly not as a personal expression to be imposed upon an unwilling public and destined eventually for a museum, have grown into works of art of themselves.

And they are so displayed. Although they are on mannikins (the figure for which they were designed being an integral part of the design), they are arranged against abstract semi-architectural backgrounds appropriate to them but having nothing whatsoever to do with the period rooms and period furniture that have been conventional in costume displays — "have been," since this exhibition should change the whole idea of what costumes and costume display should be for a museum.

NEWS
of suburban areas

In our bubbly kettle of fish—that is, news—this morning we have the spice of suburban life simmering away. Each tasty tidbit from Eastborough, Southwood, Lincoln Heights and many points south should interest and entertain any hungry reader on such a cold Friday as this.

For instance, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Lantry will be two very busy people for the next 18-odd years raising their family—the first of which arrived at Bryan Memorial Hospital on Wednesday, Oct. 25. Very young Bruce Richard Lantry weighed a hefty eight pounds and ten ounces upon his arrival, and, we hear, has been growing fast ever since.

Bruce's grandparents are Mrs. Charlotte Lowenstein of Germany and Mr. and Mrs. Clarence H. Lantry of Medford, N.J., Mr. and Mrs. Lantry, incidentally, are expected to visit their new grandson this summer.

In Southwood, Mr. and Mrs. Larry Witt will be entertaining a guest during the weekend. Jim Danbury, a college classmate of Mr. Witt, will motor from his home in Kansas City, Mo., to Lincoln on Saturday. Sunday, Mr. Witt and his guests will travel west to Halsey for a day of grouse hunting.

And speaking of guests, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Challstrom and their son, Roger, were hosts and hostess to family members last week at the Challstrom home. Visiting from Phoenix, Ariz., were Mr. and Mrs. Challstrom's son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Allen Cheney. The guests motored home on Monday.

Miss Rhea Steele, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Steele, returned home by plane last Friday from a three-week trip to New York City. The Lincoln Heights resident was the guest of her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Belkin.

Enjoying a visit from their daughter and young grandson are Prairie Valley residents, Mr. and Mrs. Donald MacCaulay. Here from Charlotte, N.C., are Mrs. Joe Gilleland and son, Brett, 17 months. We imagine that Mr. and Mrs. MacCaulay, like most proud grandparents, are having an especially fun time with young Brett!

Mr. and Mrs. MacCaulay had a three-week visit with the Gillelands in North Carolina before returning to Lincoln with their daughter and grandson. Mrs. Gilleland and Brett will be here until Sunday, when they plan to fly home.

A very exciting event took place in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Russell D. Merrill last weekend. The occasion was Mr. and Mrs. Merrill's Silver Wedding Anniversary, and one evening, they celebrated by entertaining friends for dinner.

Following that, they spent the remainder of the weekend in Kansas City where they formerly resided. While there they attended the musical comedy "The Roar of the Greasepaint, the Smell of the Crowd," and also saw a professional football game between the Kansas City Chiefs and the Denver Broncos.

Travelers from Fiene Heights recently were Mr. and Mrs. Leon Novak and daughters, Vicki and Terri. Since the children had an extended weekend because of the teachers' convention, the Novaks were able to spend five days in Deerfield, Ill., visiting with Mrs. Novak's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Gary Cadwallader.

Program

A humorous theme, "She Who Laughs, Lasts", was presented by the program speakers at the regular dinner-meeting of the Lincoln Toastmistress Club, Monday evening.

Mrs. Bryan Stromer served as toastmistress, and speakers were Mrs. Laurence Wentz, Miss Ann Gustafson, Mrs. Donald Crosier and Mrs. Josephine Eyen. Topic mistress was Mrs. Harry Schaffer, and Mrs. Irma Reeker was evaluator.

A guest of the club was Mrs. Eva Chandler of Amarillo, Tex.

Mothers Club

The Pi Beta Phi Mothers Club will entertain at a bridge benefit, 1 o'clock, Friday afternoon, at the chapter house.

Here is a practical little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add three. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures gives you.

Turning The Corner

This is the week where they turn the corner in Big Eight football and head down the home stretch and it's also the week when the Big Eight football muddle could be cleared a bit.

The key game is at Norman, Okla., and if anyone other than Colorado and Oklahoma are going to contest for the title, the Sooners must win this one.

A Colorado win would keep the Buffs with only one loss and with only Kansas and Kansas State to get by in remaining games. The Sooners, even by losing, could still tie, but they'd have to get by both Nebraska and Oklahoma State to do that.

Another key contest is at Stillwater, Okla., where Missouri must win to remain in contention for a tie. Nebraska is faced with a must-win situation at Memorial Stadium against Iowa State.

Kansas needs only to get by Kansas State to go into next week's test against Colorado with a 4-0 league mark, a feat that could earn Pepper Rodgers coach of the year honors in the Big Eight.

Last week's pick 'em percentage was .726 on 38 right, 14 wrong and one tie, including the exact 17-14 score on Tennessee-LSU, making the season mark 228 right, 108 wrong and eight ties for .695. We're 25-9-1 in the Big Eight and 44-14-1 in the top 10.

This week:

The Big Eight

NEBRASKA 28, Iowa State 7 . . . A muddy field could turn this into a passing duel and the Huskers have more good receivers than does Iowa State and more good defensive backs.

KANSAS STATE 17, Kansas 14 . . . The Wildcats need to win to regain some of their lost prestige in the Sunflower State.

OKLAHOMA 21, Colorado 14 . . . Only if William Harris and Wilmer Cooks aren't at full speed.

MISSOURI 7, Oklahoma State 0 . . . The Tigers have no offense, but oh that defense.

The Top Ten

SOUTHERN CAL 30, California 7 . . . The Trojans don't really need their Orange Juice this week.

UCLA 21, Oregon State 13 . . . Gary Beban makes the difference.

TENNESSEE 35, Tampa 0 . . . Tampa would be better off getting hit by hurricane and having the game canceled.

NORTH CAROLINA STATE 29, Virginia 13 . . . The Wolfpack is headed toward an unbeaten season.

GEORGIA 24, Houston 21 . . . The best way to stop Warren McVea is to outscore him.

PURDUE 27, Illinois 7 . . . The Boilermakers can't go to the Rose Bowl, but they can win the Big 10.

WYOMING 20, San Jose 7 . . . Another step toward an unbeaten year.

INDIANA 31, Wisconsin 7 . . . Even if the Hoosiers are looking ahead to the next three weeks when they face Michigan State, Minnesota and Purdue.

A defensive-minded, low-scoring battle is in prospect tonight when the Hastings Broncos visit Nebraska Wesleyan's Magee Stadium for a 7:30 p.m. gridiron clash that highlights Wesleyan's homecoming activities.

A victory tonight would clinch a fifth consecutive winning season for Wesleyan, which will have only six seniors on its starting units. A Hastings triumph, however, would draw the 53-game series all even, as NWU holds only a 23-22-7 margin over the Broncs, dating back to 1908.

Hastings brings only a 2-5 record into Lincoln as compared to Wesleyan's 4-3, but don't let that fool you. Last year at Hastings, the Broncos' 3-4-1 team applied one of the two blots on Wesleyan's record, 3-0, on a 38-yard field goal by Benny Congrove late in the second quarter.

Congrove is back again for Hastings, as is John Iliff, fullback-defensive end, who blocked a punt at the NWU 32 and gave the Broncs field position for the field goal.

Hastings protected the lead as the first half ended, stopping Wesleyan with only two yards in four plays after a first and goal at the Bronco nine. A fourth-down pass went incomplete as Wesleyan declined to try for a tying field goal.

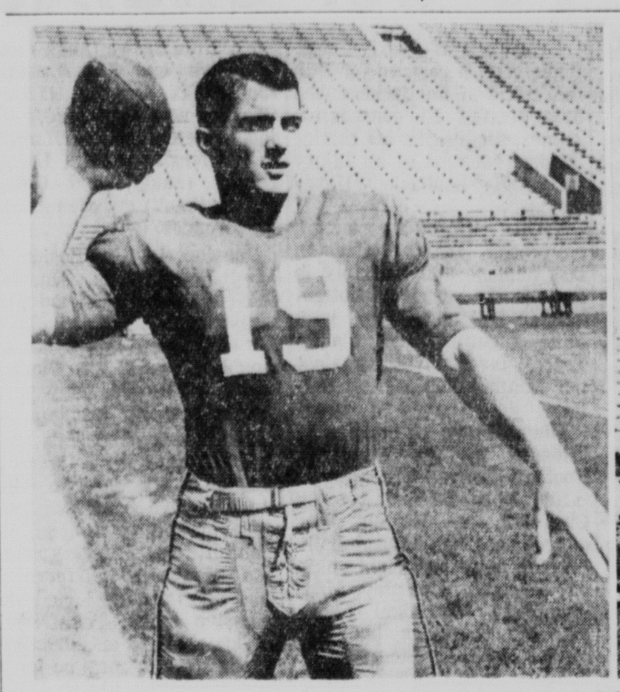
Hastings' record this year could be even better, for after come-from-behind victories in the first two games, the Broncs have hurt themselves with seven lost fumbles in a 33-21 loss to Chadron, six lost fumbles in a 21-7 loss to Doane and four pass interceptions each against Peru (7-23) and Kearney (0-48 after 0-13 at the half). Altogether, in its five setbacks, starting with a loss to Wayne, Hastings has lost the ball 33 times on interceptions and fumbles.

"We can't afford to do that against a team like Wesleyan," Hastings coach Jim Frazier says, wincing at the thought that all of Doane's touchdowns came after recovering Hastings bobbles.

Wesleyan coach Ray Westover says of Hastings, "They're a good ball club and it'll be a good game." He feels the Plainsman defense must stop running backs Congrove and Paul Joseph, quarterback Bob McAuliff and speedy end Jack Hockersmith. Linebacker Bob Aukema leads the Hastings defense.

Both teams should be in good shape, with one starter for each club on the "maybe" list. For Hastings, defensive safety Scott Cook suffered a head injury in the Kearney game, while for Wesleyan defensive tackle Larry Parker has missed three games with a knee injury and "might be ready" tonight, Westover says.

HORTON ASKS EXEMPTION



CYCLONE PASSING THREAT

Iowa State quarterback John Warder, left, and wingback Tom Busch provide the Cyclones with a strong passing threat when they meet Nebraska's Cornhuskers Saturday. Last week at Kansas, Warder completed 16 of 31 passes, 13 to Busch.

Congressman Aids Athletes

... AWARDS TAX EXEMPT?

Washington (AP)—Should athletes — amateur and professional — be required to pay income taxes on awards and trophies they receive for their prowess even though they don't actually seek them?

The Tax Court, in two instances, has ruled they should but Rep. Frank J. Horton, R-N.Y., thinks athletic awards should be exempt from taxation.

The court ruled that baseball's Maury Wills should pay taxes on the S. Rae Hickok belt, given annually to a professional athlete. And it held football's Paul Hornung liable for taxes on an auto given to him for being the outstanding player in a National Football League's championship game.

"Outstanding athletes whose preeminence is recognized with awards . . . should be exempt from tax on the awards just as are the very deserving winners of the $62,000 Nobel prizes," Horton told a news conference Thursday.

"The value in the Hickok belt is not its money value. It's the honor of being named the recipient."

The Hickok belt, which has 26 small diamonds and a larger diamond, ruby and sapphire encrusted in a gold buckle, was valued by the court at $10,000.

Recent winners have been Frank Robinson, Baltimore Orioles, 1966; Sandy Koufax, Los Angeles Dodgers, 1965, and Jim Brown, Cleveland Browns, 1964. Wills won the award in 1962.

Horton announced also the establishment of the committee for fair play for sports, a group of some 100 sports writers and athletes who are supporting legislation to change the law.

Horton and Sen. George A. Smathers, D-Fla., have introduced bills to give sports awards the same tax-exempt status now held by those won in the educational, artistic, scientific, literary and civic fields.

The New York Republican, who formerly was connected with the Rochester baseball club, said six other Congressmen plan to introduce bills similar to his. They are Reps. Cornelius Gallagher, D-N.J., Robert McEwen, R-N.Y., John Hunt, R-N.J., James Hanley, D-N.Y., Richard Ottinger, D-N.Y., and B. F. Sisk, D-Calif.

Horton acknowledges there is little chance for changing the law during the current session of Congress.

Horton interprets the tax-court ruling as affecting those receiving such honors as football's Lambert and Heisman trophies and the Amateur Athletic Union's Sullivan Award. The Lambert Trophy is a team award.

"Most of the recipients don't know they should pay tax on the awards," Horton said. "None of the Hickok winners have paid taxes on their trophies. They didn't think they had to. And they shouldn't.

Barefoot Booter Booe Gives Fairbury Kicks

... TOES 'EM UP FOR BOMBERS

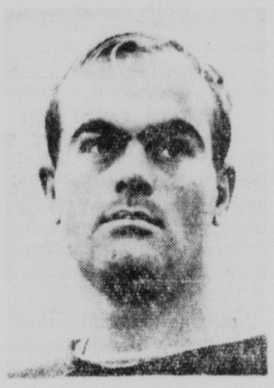
By DEAN TERRILL
Outstate Nebraska Bureau

Fairbury — A place-kicker who wears a size 5 shoe? Nope, but Royce Booe does boot with half of a size 10—the heel half.

Though the Fairbury College sophomore prefers going it barefoot, junior college grid rules insist on some type of footgear even for conversions. The compromise solution is a tennis shoe—FC blue, of course—scissored off from the arch forward.

"Maybe it's more in my head than my feet," chuckled the muscular middle guard, "but even in practice I've only hit one with a regular shoe."

Experimenting as a Beatrice High School senior, Booe went 3-for-3 against Norfolk last year. His "all-time average" is now below .550 however, and his kicking is outshone by 245 pounds of defensive savagery.



ROYCE BOOE

Still, there have been field goals in practice of up to 35 yards. Every naked-toe try brings grimaces of pain from teammates and Coach Frank Elliott.

"It stings a little the first three or four times I practice," admitted the youth, now a commuter from nearby Endicott. "After that, I don't feel a thing."

The Bombers close the season Friday night against Norfolk Junior College at Norfolk.

Mantle Hints At 2 Years Of Play Left

San Antonio, Tex. (AP)—Yankee baseball slugger Mickey Mantle said Wednesday he will play two more years. He hinted that he will retire after that.

Mantle, here for a banquet, told a sports writer he would play "at least two more years."

Mantle was asked if he would ever catch Babe Ruth in home runs.

"Ruth hit 714 during his career and I'm 200 behind with only two seasons to go, so I don't think there is much chance," Mantle replied.

The slugger also said he had no ambitions to be a manager or coach.

Mantle said he believes the Yankees have little chance to regain the American League pennant next year.

"We really weren't as bad as we looked in the standings," he said. "We finished in ninth place but 34 of our losses were by one run."

NU Chased Indoors Again By Weather

Nebraska, for the second straight Thursday, completed its preparations for an upcoming football game by working in the crowded confines of the NU Fieldhouse.

The Huskers were chased indoors a week ago before the Texas Christian encounter by rain and Thursday's cold weather also caused NU coaches to take their squad indoors to put the finishing touches on preparations for Saturday's Band Day contest against Iowa State.

The Huskers were limited as to what they could run in the way of reviewing plays because of the narrow fieldhouse and punters had to do their kicking into the mesh net used by the baseball team for indoor batting practice.

Dana Stephenson, the defensive halfback who suffered a bruised shoulder in the win over TCU, worked at length on his punting and was pronounced fit by NU trainers for punting duty.

He will not, however, see action other than as a punter.

The Huskers, weather permitting, will hold a brief loosening-up session this afternoon outdoors. Iowa State is not due to arrive in Lincoln until 6 p.m. and will not work out at Memorial Stadium today.

DiMadge-Finley Tie Big Surprise

© New York Times Service

By ARTHUR DALEY

New York — Dan Topping practically shoved the money toward a reluctant Joe Dimaggio and the famed Yankee Clipper backed away. He was being offered a sinecure job of $100,000 for his name, his reputation and his gate appeal. All he had to do to earn it was show up for the 1952 season. He wouldn't even have to swing a bat or field a ball. DiMadge refused.

"I no longer have it," he said simply. "I have reached a stage where I can't produce the sort of baseball everyone expects of me. And so, I've played my last game of ball."

Thus did the Jolter retire from the sport, too proud to take money under false pretenses. He left with integrity intact, an even more admirable figure than ever before. Of recent years he has had a fringe part in the sport, helping Yankee hitters in spring training. But they had to come to him. He forced nothing on them while remaining so approachable that none was awed by the serene majesty of the man.

Up to now DiMadge ignored any feelers from the baseball brass that he formally ally himself with any team. When he finally capitulated the other day to become the executive vice-president of the Athletics in their new Oakland base, he stunned everyone who knew him. And the better a guy knew him the more shocking this contretempts had to be.

DiMadge is a tower of dignity and class. His new boss, Charles O. (for Owner) Finley, has neither quality and is a total maverick whose eccentricities have loused up this entire baseball operation to date. And Finley is as hard-headed as his mule mascot, also known as Charlie O.

DiMaggio is supposed to serve as Finley's "adviser." Yet the last thing the Athletics' owner ever accepted from anyone has been advice. In seven years he ran through six managers and four general managers. He makes all decisions, big and little. Nor has he done well at it, either. Thus far he has expressed scorn for subordinates.

"It doesn't take any genius to run a baseball team, as manager or general manager," he once said. "A monkey could stand out on the field and wave at pitchers."

In the Finley scorebook it would have to seem that managers and general managers are born with two strikes on them. Inevitably he fires in the third strike.

The Jolter apparently has been placed in an unclearly defined gray area. It may enable him to last longer because fewer clashes of personality or opinion will arise above the surface. It's a cinch, though, that the first public embarrassment of DiMadge will end their relationship — and perhaps the first non-public conflict, too.

Joe has mellowed and softened over the years, but he still has the same fierce pride that lashed him into performances of Hall of Fame stature. He spurned Topping's offer a decade and a half ago because it would have meant swallowing his pride. Nor will he gulp down any unpalatable potion that Finley serves him.

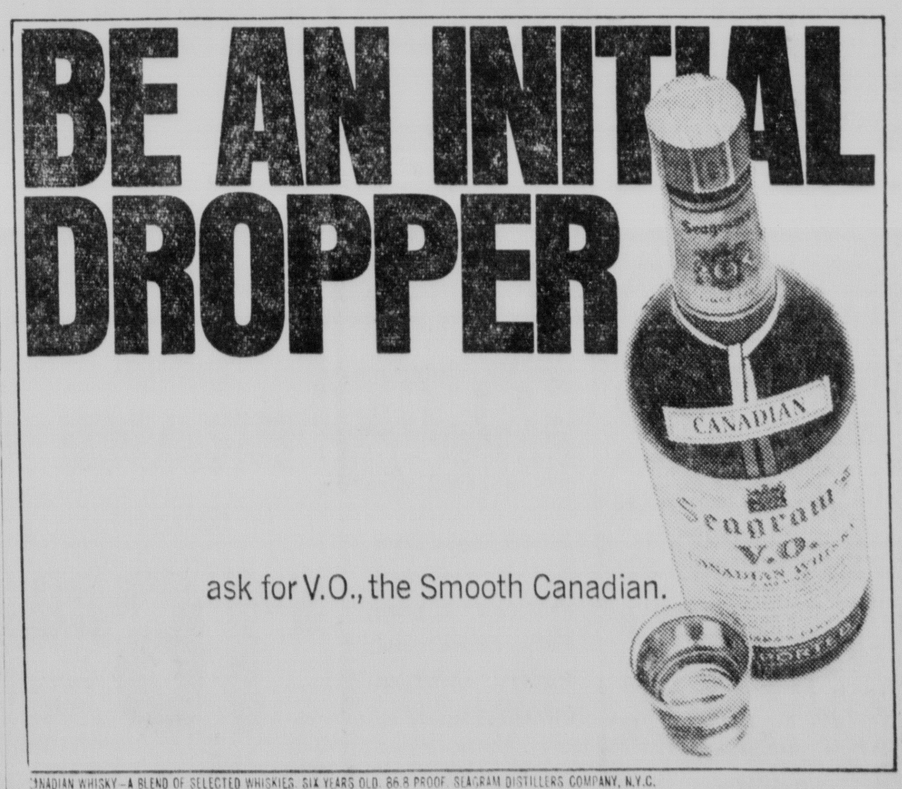
Why did DiMadge accept the job with the erratic Charlie O.? It's a question that baseball men have been batting around ever since it happened. Yet close scrutiny reveals that mutual advantages were involved. In one of the sport's time-honored phrases: It's a deal that helped both teams.

First and foremost is the place where the peripatetic Finley planted his brogans—Oakland. It lies on the other side of the bay from Joe's San Francisco home. In baseball as well as in life, proximity can result in strange marriages. Because Charlie O. brought the mountain within easy range of Mahommet, he was able to reach out for the unreachable. If he had taken his franchise anywhere else, it would have been no dice.

For DiMadge it's a job of convenience. He doesn't need the money. But it brings him back into baseball, a sport he has genuinely loved. It won't interfere with his golf and gives him something to occupy his mind in his spare time. And he can always walk out on the Athletics, no worse off than when he agreed to the Finley sales talk.

As for Charlie O., this could have been one of his few smart moves. The Yankee Clipper is a household god in the Bay Area and his enormous popularity is calculated to win Finley a quicker acceptance than he would otherwise get. And few men in sport need to have his public relations image bolstered than does Finley, a man characterized on the floor of the Senate by Sen. Stuart Symington of Missouri as "one of the most disreputable characters ever to enter the American sports scene."

It's about time Finley stopped his nonsense. He should leave his maverick label behind him in Kansas City and start conforming in Oakland. DiMaggio gives him the opportunity to break with the past and become the attractive, ingratiating man he can be on occasions. But if he ever mistreats the Jolter the way he mishandled his other aides, the indignant citizenry of northern California will be tempted to hang him from the Golden Gate Bridge. He won't be asked to leave. He'll be chased out of town.



Big Eight Football Workouts

Missouri

Coach Dan Devine said that halfback Jon Staggers, out three weeks with a shoulder injury, will play but another sophomore Ron McBride, will be the starter at left half.

Oklahoma State

Stillwater, Okla. (AP) — The Oklahoma State University Cowboys spent 50 minutes in practice Thursday, preparing for a Saturday Big Eight Conference football game with Missouri.

It will be parents' day at Stillwater, and OSU officials said a near-sellout is expected.

The Cowboys have dropped games to Missouri the past two years, and haven't won a game against the Tigers since 1952.

Coach Phil Cutchin said the team will hold a brief workout Friday.

Kansas

Lawrence, Kan. (AP)—Thursday's chilly rain forced the Kansas football team to practice indoors, after several days of slogging through mud this week.

"There was no reason to go outside today," Coach Pepper Rodgers said. "We just checked out assignments and reviewed our plays."

Rodgers said Emery Hicks will start at middle guard on defense against Kansas State Saturday, and Larry Dercher will be at right tackle. Dercher had been injured and Hicks had been working in his place.

Kansas State

Manhattan, Kan. (AP)—Rain and mud caused the Kansas State Wildcats to work out indoors again Thursday.

The squad has had very little full-speed, outdoor practice to get ready for Saturday's big game at Kansas.

Students and other fans defied the rain and threat of snow to attend a big pep rally and bonfire, labelled "Burn the Jayhawk," Thursday night at K-State's ROTC field. Coach Vince Gibson and some of the players were speakers at the rally.

The team will go to Topeka by bus Friday, spend the night there, then go on to Lawrence.

Oklahoma

Norman, Okla. (AP)—A light, nylon tarp was spread over the turf of Owen Stadium here Thursday, as officials of the University of Oklahoma acted to keep a dry field for the Sooners' crucial Big Eight Conference football game with Colorado Saturday.

Snow was in the forecast as coach Chuck Fairbanks dismissed his squad Thursday after a practice session.

"It's going to be a tough game, but I think our kids will play well," the Sooner coach said.

Fairbanks said all of his players will be ready for action Saturday.

Thursday's practice session was spent working on "special situations" and the OU kicking game.

A closed circuit television hookup will be used to relay the game back to Boulder and the Colorado campus, OU officials said. The game is expected to be a sellout.

Weiskopf Has Hawaiian Lead

Honolulu (AP) — Tom Weiskopf, a flop in this tournament as a bridegroom last year, shot a solid 68 as a married man of one year and took the first round lead of the $100,000 Hawaiian Open Thursday.

Weiskopf's lead held up when pre-tournament favorite Arnold Palmer tried what he called a pair of "fancy pants" trap shots that failed and wound up with an even par 72 over the Waialae course on the slopes of Diamond Head.

Two little known pros shared second spot behind Weiskopf — Jim Grand of Weathersfield, Conn., playing only his second tour tournament, and John Felus of Portage, Pa., smallest man in the field, at 5-foot-4. They had 69s.

NU Laboratory Field Opened For Small Game

The University of Nebraska announced Thursday that the 9,400-acre University Field Laboratory at Mead will be opened later this fall for shotgun hunting of small game on a trial basis.

However, there will be no pheasant shooting on areas under university control when the season opens Saturday because of the need to harvest experimental crops safely and without interruption, according to Warren Sahs, laboratory supervisor.

Once hunting is allowed on the limited portion, a public notice will be issued, he said.

NL To Hold Expansion Meeting

Cincinnati (AP) — The National League, considering expansion, will hold a special meeting in Chicago on Nov. 13 but no cities seeking a franchise will be invited to have representatives on hand.

The American League already has announced an expansion plan but National League President Warren Giles said Thursday major league rules provide that the American League plans must be presented and discussed at a joint meeting presided over by Commissioner William Eckert.

He added that, "I feel the National League should meet prior to that joint meeting, which it is understood the commissioner will call sometime during the meetings in Mexico City—Nov. 28-Dec. 12.

While the National League has applications from several cities for membership, this will not be an appropriate meeting to hear representatives of those cities and none will be invited to appear."

The American League expansion plan covers transfer of the Kansas City franchise to Oakland, Calif. and awarding of franchises to Seattle, Wash. and a new group at Kansas City effective, if possible, in 1969.

The game between the No. 2 teams, Boys Town and Lincoln Roberts, will begin at 1 p.m., with the No. 1 teams, Brandeis and Lincoln Police, meeting at 2:30 p.m.

The Capital City league actually wound up with a two-way tie for second place as Roberts and Lions both closed their seasons with identical 3-2-1 records after the season's final play Wednesday.

Lions, which had been hurt late in the season with injuries to seven of its 11 starters, voted to let Roberts represent Lincoln.

Husker Frosh Tilt Postponed Until Monday

Rainy conditions in Lincoln Thursday prompted University of Nebraska officials to postpone Friday's scheduled freshman football game between NU and Iowa State until Monday.

Kickoff will be at 2:30 p.m. Monday at Memorial Stadium.

The game was postponed so the field would be in the best possible shape for Saturday's varsity clash between the Huskers and the Cyclones, according to a NU spokesman.

Maglie Blasts Williams Over Sox' Dismissal

Boston (AP) — Sal Maglie, indicating he may be through with baseball after almost 30 years in the game, has sharply criticized Boston Red Sox manager Dick Williams.

"I got a lousy deal from Dick Williams," the one-time ace hurler, who was fired as Boston pitching coach last month, said in an interview published in the Boston Herald-Traveler Thursday.

He said Williams "never listened to me" during the season and "never had the courage or decency to tell me I was fired" afterwards.

Maglie aiso charged that Williams used poor judgment in the seventh World Series game when ace right-hander Jim Lonborg was pounded by the victorious St. Louis Cardinals before being relieved.

"It was obvious Lonborg didn't have it. Williams should have gotten him out sooner, and I told him so," Maglie said by telephone from a Niagara Falls, N.Y., hospital where he is under treatment for a neck injury suffered in an automobile accident shortly after the end of the season.

"It was a crime that he let a man who'd done such a great job for him all season take a pounding like that," Maglie added.

Cramer Makes 'Em Listen To Hart

Pittsburgh (AP) — For the first time since Dave Hart became Pitt's football coach, he has a player all his own to crow about.

"I've been talking about Gary Cramer all season but no one would believe me," Hart says. "I thought Gary played a good game against UCLA in the opener and I talked about him several times in the last few weeks, but no one seemed to notice."

Everyone noticed, though, when Cramer raced for 139 yards — including a 59-yard touchdown sprint — against Navy last week as the Panthers dropped a 22-21 decision.

Cramer was the second player recruited by Hart after he became Pitt coach and bids to become Hart's first star.

Hart's other standouts in the last season and a half, such as they have been, were leftovers from the John Michelosen regime.

Cramer's 139 yards against the Middies were the most by a Pitt back since quarterback Fred Mazurek scrambled for 142 in a 22-21 victory against Penn State in 1963.

"Now everybody knows what I've been talking about," Hart said. "If Gary hadn't made the 59-yard run I really doubt whether anyone would have thought he stood out. That's the type of player he is. He's not flashy at all but is dependable and consistent. He always does the job."

Cramer, who modestly shrugs off his accomplishments, said simply "the blocking was good and the holes were there" against Navy.

"That made it pretty easy," he said. "It was the best blocking we've had for the running game all year."

Hart compares Cramer, a sophomore from Belle Vernon, Pa., with Pittsburgh Steelers halfback Dick Hoak, an eight-year veteran in the National Football League.

"That's the type of back Cramer is," Hart said. "He lacks speed but he has good balance and sense for picking the holes. He finds daylight as it occurs."

Cramer says simply: "I know I'm not too fast," adding he doesn't know just how slow he is.

"Probably couldn't beat too many people in a race, if that's what you mean," he said.

Cramer, who earned a second team berth in pre-season by running for 89 yards in the spring intra-squad game, moved from a reserve tailback to a reserve fullback and back to starting tailback by a series of circumstances.

Pitt, which figured to be strong at the position, lost Denny Ferris, Joe Jones, Skip Orszulak, George Pribish and Paul Bergman. All except Jones, kicked off the team for disciplinary reasons by Hart, were injured.

"I guess they needed someone healthy," said Cramer.

—AFL INJURY REPORT—

Schottenheimer To Get Chance

New York (AP)—Marty Schottenheimer, a reserve for Buffalo's trio of linebackers who have started 80 consecutive games, finally gets his chance Sunday because of an injury to middle linebacker Harry Jacobs.

Jacobs suffered a broken collarbone against Houston last Sunday and probably is lost for the season. Schottenheimer will team up with Mike Stratton and John Tracey for the Bills against the Miami Dolphins at Buffalo.

The rundown on injuries as released by the American Football League office:

New York, 5-1-1, at Kansas City, 4-3 Joe Namath, Jet quarterback has missed drills because of twisted right ankle but is expected to play. Mike Simolinski (shoulder) ready for special teams but Bill Mathis and Billy Joe will split the New York fullback job.

Chiefs may have problem at guard with Ed Budde (strained knee) and Curt Merz (bad back) questionable. Linebacker Willie Lanier has a head injury and E. J. Holub (hamstring) may be at center instead of his usual linebacker job if Tony DiMidio (knee) and Mike Hudock (strained leg) aren't ready.

Oakland, 6-1, at Denver, 1-7—The Raiders list cornerback Willie Brown (ankle) and defensive end Ike Lassiter (ankle) as doubtful. Dave Grayson would sub for Brown and Carleton Oats for Lassiter. Defensive backs Lonnie Wright (ankle) and Goldie Sellers (back) question marks for Broncos.

Houston, 4-2-1, at Boston, 2-5-1—Bobby Jancik, Houston defensive back, sidelined with hamstring but fullback Hoyle Granger (charleyhorse) should be ready. Jim Whalen, Boston tight end, may play despite shoulder problem.

Miami, 1-5, at Buffalo, 2-5-Fullback Sam Price (knee) a question mark for Dolphins and defensive back Bob Petrella (broken wrist bone) is doubtful. Stan Mitchell would take Price's place. Safety Willie West (shoulder) and defensive tackle Tom Nomina (knee), both out since the season started, may be back. Schottenheimer replaces Jacobs for Buffalo.

San Diego, 5-1-1, has a bye but has problems with defensive end Tom Day (neck strain), split end Gary Garrison (shoulder), guard Walt Sweeney (hip pointer), linebacker Rick Redman (thigh) and tight end Willie Frazier (heel bruise).

Simpson Returns

Los Angeles (AP) — Southern California's ace halfback O. J. Simpson has returned to the practice field, will make the trip to Berkeley for Saturday's game against California but probably won't play.

Simpson suffered a sprained arch in his right foot against Oregon last Saturday and was declared out of action indefinitely.

SPORTS FANS!

I BET YOU DIDN'T KNOW

By Roy C. Feltman

What were the five greatest football games ever played? . . . A sports service recently took a survey to find out — in the opinion of experts from coast-to-coast . . . And here are the five games they picked:

1. Notre Dame 35, Army 13 in 1913 . . . This game was picked because of its historical importance . . . This one game, more than any other, proved the value of the forward pass in football.

2. Illinois 39, Michigan 14, 1924 . . . The game when Red Grange made runs of 95, 66, 55 and 40 yards each for 4 touchdowns in the 1st quarter . . . This is voted the greatest individual performance of all time.

3. 1925 Rose Bowl . . . The classic meeting of football's most famous backfield (Notre Dame's Four Horsemen) and the man some call the greatest single back in history (Stanford's Ernie Nevers).

4. 1940 National League title game (Bears 73, Redskins 0) . . . This game was picked because it helped establish the modern T-formation; and because many say the Bears — that day — were the most perfect football team ever seen on a field.

5. 1958 NFL title game (Colts 23, Giants 17 in overtime) . . . The experts said this was the most exciting big game ever played.

You probably have some favorite games yourself that you'd rank among the five greatest of all-time, but these are the ones the experts picked, and we thought you'd enjoy reading it.

I bet you didn't know . . . That Bourbon Supreme is the only charcoal distilled whiskey in the world. Its good taste justifies its name. Ask for it by name at your favorite package store or tavern.

Bad Tonsils Slow Hyland

. . . PIUS MEETS EAST

By RICK AKIN

Funny, how little things—like bad tonsils—can botch up progress. Pius X's end John Hyland carried a couple of bad tonsils which, until removed, slowed his athletic development.

"The doctor told me I had bad tonsils," he says. "He said they were infected most of the time and that my whole body was fighting the infection."

The touchy tonsils kept his weight down to 115 when he was a freshman but between then and his sophomore year, John had them out, which was like giving him a vitamin pill.

"I always ate real well," he says, but I wasn't growing any. I had my tonsils out and gained 20 pounds. By the time I was a junior I weighed 160 and I'm 175 now." That's 60 pounds gained in the less than four years.

And he's using it well at left end for the Bolts, contesting East Friday night at Seacrest Field. The kickoff is 7:30 p.m.

Hyland was noted another time for not letting hindrances stand in his way.

In junior high school he ran the 880-yard run in 2:30—wearing blue jeans instead of shorts and sneakers instead of spikes. That time inspired him to continue with track.

He ran a 1:59.7 half with a stretch sprint in winning his half-mile heat at the state meet last spring and hopes to duck to 1:57 which would break the school record.

Speaking of fast finishes, Pius is in the midst of one. Clouted six times, the Thunderbolts have won their last two—32-6 over Fairbury and 14-0 over Southeast — and are favored over the Spartans Friday night.

"We decided we'd better get to moving if we were going to win some games," Hyland says.

"We got to the point I'd hoped we'd be by the first three games," coach Vince Aldrich says.

East has its final chance to evade an all-losing season, the common fate of first year schools. But coach Lee Zentic had hoped for a win for motivation. East has yet to appear downhearted, however.

All other Lincoln teams travel this windup weekend. Southeast goes to Grand Island with a 4-4 record hoping to finish above .500. The Islanders are 7-1.

Northeast heads for North Platte, with ups and downs similar to the Rockets. Each week after getting bombed — 56-14 by Bellevue and 28-0 by Beatrice—Northeast has shored up and been victorious — 20-7 over Pius and 33-7 over Hastings. The Rockets are 2-6 for the season.

Lincoln High (7-1) is at Sioux City (Ia.) Central, which stands 1-5 this year and is considered "down." The Little Maroons do, however, have Larry Butler, considered their best back, coming off the injured list for the LHS encounter.

Black Shirts Top Defense Unit In U.S.

New York City—Nebraska's defensive Black Shirts have moved into the top spot in total defense among the nation's major colleges this week, according to figures released Thursday by the National Collegiate Sports Services.

The Huskers, in allowing 155.3 yards per game, lead runner-up Georgia by 2.9 yards in total defense.

Nebraska also ranks fourth in rushing defense with a 63.2 mark, trailing Syracuse at 46.5, Tulsa at 53.0, and Virginia Tech at 56.7 in that department.

The Huskers rank eighth in pass defense, giving up 92.2 yards per game while the leader is Georgia at 63.0.

Nebraska is the only team ranking in the top 10 in both pass defense and rushing defense.

Oklahoma is the nation's leader in defense against scoring allowing only 17 points in five games for a 3.4 average. Missouri is seventh with a 7.7 average allowed per contest.

NSSBA Will Discuss Negotiations

Professional negotiations, addresses and discussions are expected to highlight the Nebraska State School Boards Association convention here Nov. 12-13.

George Tipler, executive secretary of the Wisconsin Association of School Boards, will keynote the meetings at a general session expected to attract some 500 members, according to NSSBA Executive Secretary Richard Brown of Holdrege.

Tipler "has had the longest experience of any state association executive in the area of negotiations," reported Brown.

Most Drastic

Wisconsin, he noted, was one of the first states to "require board-teacher consultations, and its compulsory laws are among the most drastic in the nation."

Providing a preliminary look at professional negotiations and leading discussions on developing practical suggestions for boards that get involved in negotiations will be Dr. George Bailey, superintendent of the Bellevue Public Schools.

The opening day of the convention will also feature reports on the Nebraska State Medical Association surveys on health education, school health programs and athletic training programs.

Education Bills

Sen. Calista Cooper Hughes of Humboldt will address the closing night banquet. She is expected to disclose some of her plans for education bills in the next session of the Unicameral.

Robert Magee of Lincoln and Charles A. Peters of Omaha are the announced candidates for second vice president to be elected during the convention.

NSSBA members also will be voting on 12 proposed resolutions supporting full funding of state aid to schools, district reorganization, demands that the state pay the full excess cost of required special education programs, state aid for area vocational schools, adoption of sound board policies and establishment of "enforceable" minimum criteria for approval of Class I schools.

One of the proposed resolutions calls on the group to condemn the recent use by teachers of "strikes, sanctions and organized absenteeism," labeling such acts as "decidedly unprofessional."

NSSBA members also will be voting on a resolution favoring general grants to states instead of categorical allocations of federal funds.

Ross Supported By Rep. Denney

Rep. Robert Denney reported Thursday he favors re-election of Donald R. Ross of Omaha as Nebraska's Republican national committeeman.

Denney, himself a former state GOP chairman, said he thinks Ross has done "an outstanding job" and has brought prestige to the state by high position within the national party organization. Ross is ticket chairman for the 1968 national convention.

The GOP Executive Committee has called for a preprimary state convention to be held in Omaha next March 22 for the purpose of electing a national committeeman and national committeewoman for four-year terms.

Radio Appeal Made

New York (UPI) — Republican State Chairman Charles A. Schoneck, Jr. made a radio appeal to his missing 16-year-old daughter in the belief that she has "dropped out" in Greenwich Village's hippie haunts.

CPPD Will Pay $123,151 To Counties

Columbus (AP)—Bernard M. De Lay of Norfolk, president of Consumers Public Power District's board of directors, announced Thursday that checks totaling $123,151 have been readied for delivery to county treasurers in Nebraska.

The amounl represents the first half of CPPD's payment in lieu of real estate and personal taxes for 1967 and is distributed in the 66 counties where CPPD properties are located.

The total includes $8,949 which is CPPD's share of in-lieu payments to the four-county area of Platte, Boone, Nance and Colfax counties, taken over by Loup River Public Power District June 1.

It also includes CPPD's share of the payment to Lancaster County, $14,440.

Previous payments by CPPD this year, including occupation taxes, the five per cent gross revenue tax based on 1966 revenues from incorporated cities and villages served at retail, and second-half payments of 1966 in lieu tax disbursements, have brought the year's total distribution to $801,390.

State Revokes Licenses Of 22

State Motor Vehicle Director Larry Johns reported Thursday that 22 Nebraska drivers' licenses were revoked in October under the state's implied consent law.

This brought the number of revocations to 283 so far this year out of 309 cases heard by the department.

Under Nebraska law, the license of a driver may be revoked for one year for refusal to submit to a chemical test for alcohol when arrested on suspicion of drunk driving.

Buys Scrap Copper

Chattanooga, Tenn. (AP) — The Tennessee Valley Authority announced Thursday the sale of some 200,000 pounds of scrap copper conductor cable to Aaron Ferer & Sons Co. of Omaha, Neb. The price was an estimated $94,658.

CAB Denies Lincoln Request For Information

A Civil Aeronautics Board (CAB) examiner Thursday denied Lincoln's request that air carriers provide passenger information data to support the Capital City's bid to gain equal hearing with Omaha on air service needs.

Examiner Richard A. Walsh's decision followed a pre-hearing conference in the CAB investigation of airline service needs between Omaha and six other cities.

Although granted intervention in the service to Omaha case in a defensive role, the Lincoln Airport Authority has petitioned the CAB for concurrent hearing of Lincoln's service needs.

Lincoln had requested the CAB to order each air carrier serving Omaha to undertake on-board surveys to determine how many Lincoln passengers will enplane and deplane at Omaha.

"Basically, he (Walsh) told us to go get our own information," airport authority Chauncey Barney said Thursday.

"Our disappointment is that we can't get the information we thought would be of interest and value to the case—we'll have to get it some other way," he said.

Barney noted that it was determined at the pre-hearing conference that the Omaha service case hearing will be held April 16.

Motorists Warned Of Crossings

Based on the trend in recent years, there will be approximately 20 crossing collisions during November with four resulting in fatalities, he said.

Winter Hazards

These are frosted and steamy car windows reducing seeing ability, closed windows and additional heater noise that reduce hearing ability and icy and slippery roads that reduce stopping ability.

Ryan said motorists should approach crossing at reduced speeds, look and listen and look again before crossing the track.

'Fully Alert'

"When a motorist competes with a locomotive for the right-of-way, it is a one-sided contest," he warned. "It is possible to even up the odds somewhat by being extra cautious and fully alert to all warning signs and signals."

Ryan said one in five railroad crossing accident is fatal and that in 1966 every tenth death recorded on the Nebraska highways resulted from a train-car collision.

State Equal Opportunity Meeting Set

The State Equal Employment Opportunity Commission will hold its first meeting in several months Wednesday.

Emmett J. Dennis Jr., the commission's executive director, said the commissioners will meet at 9:30 a.m. in the governor's hearing room.

The last scheduled meeting in August was postponed because of lack of a quorum.

Dennis said 29 active cases are pending before the commission.

He said the breakdown of cases by type of discrimination alleged is racial discrimination, 20; religion, 1; national origin, 2 and sex, 6.

The director said he will also recommend to the commission an application for a $15,000 federal research grant.

He indicated the grant would be used to supplement a one-man professional staff to develop "factual information about the patterns of employment discrimination in the state."

City Post Office Bid Opening Is Reset For Dec. 5

The bids were previously scheduled to have been opened Thursday.

A General Services Administration (GSA) spokesman in the Kansas City, Mo., regional office said bid openings on several projects have been delayed since funds have not been appropriated.

The main post office project is estimated to cost $3.1 million. Construction time will be approximately 21 months.

Governor Sends Guardsmen To End Winston-Salem Strife

Winston-Salem, N.C. (AP)—A company of riot-trained National Guardsmen rolled into Winston-Salem Thursday night to put down violence that broke out in the wake of funeral rites for a Negro who died after being struck by a policeman.

Groups of Negroes roamed the streets on foot and in cars. They set small fires, tossed rocks and bottles, broke store windows, overturned autos and set them afire and scuffled with police.

Gov. Dan Moore ordered the company of Guardsmen into the city and shortly after their arrival he reported "the situation has quieted down."

Police On Duty

Police Chief Justus Tucker said every available policeman had been called to duty.

Maj. Gen. Claude Bowers, the state's adjutant general, was ordered to take charge of the guardsmen, many of whom recently received special riot training.

Trash Fires

A police source said groups of Negroes scattered over the downtown area setting trash fires in boxes in front of stores. Some scuffled with police and passersby.

The violence started just after dusk, even as ministers still were intoning last rites for 32-year-old James Eller, who died last Saturday, two weeks after he was struck with a blackjack by a policeman who sought to arrest him. The officer, W. E. Owens, said Eller resisted arrest.

Eller's wife obtained a warrant charging Owens with murder, but the charges were dismissed in municipal court.

Nevertheless, Owens was suspended from the force pending an investigation launched by Mayor W. C. Benton and Police Chief Tucker.

Jacobs Reveals Sale Of Omaha Advertising Firm

Omaha (AP)—Morris Jacobs, founder and former chairman of the board of the Bozell & Jacobs Advertising Agency, Thursday announced the sale of the firm to a group of its executives.

Jacobs will continue to serve as a director and consultant.

The new organization is headed by Jacob's son-in-law, Charles D. Peebler Jr., of Omaha, who will continue as president, and Alan J. Jacobs of Chicago, who has served as executive vice president since 1965 and has been named chairman of the executive committee.

Twenty-six other executives hold the remaining stock.

B & J was founded in 1921. Billings this year are expected to exceed $28 million.

The firm recently acquired Emerson Foote, Inc., agency of New York and Kastor Foote, Hilton and Atherton of Atlanta, Ga.

Officials Warn About Expanding Hog Production

Washington (AP)—The Agriculture Department Thursday cautioned farmers against overexpansion of hog production at this time lest an oversupply of pork undermine hog prices and bring economic troubles to producers.

Under Secretary of Agriculture John A. Schnittker, meeting with a group of hog producers from across the country, said recent declines in prices of corn—a reflection of this year's record production of the livestock feed grain—might encourage livestock men to step up hog production unduly.

The farm officials said November is a time of decision for hog farmers.

Schnittker said that with a large supply of other meats in prospect, even a 5% increase in pig production next spring would result in substantially lower hog prices in late 1968 and early 1969.

School Will Be Dedicated Sunday

Stella (UPI) — The new Southeast Nebraska consolidated school building here will be dedicated Sunday with Melvin Olson of the State Department of Education giving the dedicatory address.

The building was opened for classes at the beginning of the current school year. The cost of the structure was $616,619.

The school replaces the former schools at Stella, Shubert and Bratton Union in Richardson County and Nemaha and the rural Higgins District in Nemaha County.

Son Cites Father In Divorce Cases

London (AP) — A father was cited by his son as correspondent in a double divorce action in London Thursday. In the next case his wife was granted a divorce because of his adultery with his daughter-in-law.

He was Thomas Patrick O'Shaughnessy, a 47-year-old ice cream salesman. His son is Patrick John O'Shaughnessy. The elder O'Shaughnessy contested neither action.

Omaha Man Guilty In Draft Evasion Case

Chief Federal District Judge Richard E. Robinson deferred sentence and ordered Vaughn remain free on his own recognizance.

Vaughn had claimed he had become a conscientious objector after he had been ordered to report for induction.

CB&Q Reports Decline Of 66% In Its Net Income

A net income decline of 66% from 1966's first nine months has been announced by William J. Quinn, president of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad.

During the January through September period, the net income was $5,635,265 compared to the 1966 figure of $16,742,726.

Quinn explained that sharply reduced grain shipments, higher wage and fringe benefit costs, strikes by rail and auto workers and high operating costs caused by severe winter weather earlier in the year affected income performance.

Revenues this year are $204,571,939, compared to $213,299,448 during the same period last year. Freight revenues declined three per cent and passenger revenues were down 13%.

In the third quarter, net income was $1,052,110, a 82% decline from the third quarter of 1966.

'Mail Robbery' Attack Renewed

Washington (UPI) — Rep. Glenn Cunningham, R-Neb., Thursday continued his attack on what he terms the "great mail robbery of 1967"—a subsidy to newspapers and magazines in the postal rate bill before Congress.

Terming it "outrageous," the Nebraska congressman said the subsidy is one of the reasons for the huge post office deficit and costs taxpayers an estimated $250 million a year or more.

"The fact remains that 'holier than thou' newspapers are still being heavily subsidized when sent through the mails", Cunningham said. "Newspapers and magazines are against everyones' subsidy but their own."

Market Wipes Out Sharp, Early Gains

New York (AP) — A sharp, early stock market rally Thursday proved just as abortive as others in recent weeks. The gains were wiped out and another loss posted. Trading was heavy.

Volume was 10.76 million shares compared with 10.94 million Wednesday.

The Dow Jones industrial average took a loss of 2.25 at 864.83. At 1 p.m. the average was up 6.88 to 873.96. From this peak to the final reading represented a drop of 9.13 points.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks fell .3 to 312.0 with industrials off 1.3, rails off .7 and utilities off .2.

Of 1,480 issues traded, 840 declined and 399 advanced. New highs for the year totaled 21 and new lows 81.

Eight of the 15 most active stocks declined, five advanced and two were unchanged.

American Motors, off ½ at 10½ on 191.800 shares, was the most active stock. An early block of 100,000 shares insured A.M.C. a position at the top.

General Motors was up nearly 2 points in early trading as it showed the way for other blue chips in the recovery drive. GM managed to salvage a gain of ½ at 79½.

Among the active issues, Occidental Petroleum, up 1½, and Texas Gulf Sulphur, up 3, continued to respond to good corporate news and were relatively unaffected by the general retreat.

Chrysler lost 1, Woolworth 1½, RCA 1⅝, International Telephone 1⅜, IBM 1¾, M-G-M 2¼, Procter & Gamble 2, Xerox 8⅝ and New York Central 1¾.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index lost .37 at 92.34. The new York Exchange index lost .23 cents at $51.24.

Prices declined on the American Stock Exchange.

EVERYBODY'S MONEY:

Experienced Financiers Try To Anticipate Likely Shifts

By Merryle S. Rukeyser

MERRYLE RUKEYSER

They go out on a limb, ignore reality and wistfully expect a boom, willy nilly, to validate their expectation however unreasonable.

On the other hand, experienced financiers seek to appraise objectively the shape of things to come, and to adjust their affairs to likely changes.

For example, here and now the recurrence of tight money, with the federal government paying the highest interest rate for borrowed funds since 1921, there are opportunities for older affluent citizens to be kind to their heirs and assigns.

Death Duties

For there is an arbitrary tax ruling which permits estates to pay death duties in approved U.S. Government bonds, now selling at substantial discounts, and the tax collector accepts such bonds at par, irrespective of prevailing market prices. Evidently the purpose of the ruling is to stimulate a demand for government bonds at a time of weak market prices.

For example, U.S. Treasury 3s due 1955 recently fell to around 76 and offered a yield of 4.48%. Some of different maturities yielded over 5½%. This indicates that you don't have to die to win. Each of these obligations, irrespective of current market price, will be redeemed in fixed dollars at par at the maturity date.

Accordingly, those with a life expectancy which makes it likely that they will be alive on the maturity date can themselves benefit from depressed market prices.

In connection with the submission of depreciated U.S. Government Bonds as payment at the face value of the bonds in settlement of death duties, the estate is subject to a capital gains tax on the difference between the depressed purchase price and par. Accordingly, it is simple to determine from current estate tax rates whether the tax bracket for the estate will be more than the 25% impost on long term capital gains on the bonds.

Eligibility for this use does not hinge on long maturities. Bond brokers can prepare for clients lists of bonds eligible for such use in preparation of death duties.

As for younger folks not at an age when it is fashionable to contemplate death, there is loose thinking about bonds in an inflationary period.

Bonds Suitable

There is a tendancy to downgrade bonds because they do not constitute a hedge against inflation. But fixed dollar commitments are suitvastly more than good stocks.

While growth stocks are also marketable, there is no necessary time correlation between the investor's personal and family needs for large gobs of cash and the prevailing level of security prices. If the stock market happens to be in a tailspin at the time, it is advantageous to have available high grade bonds which can be marketed without a substantial loss.

The mature investor recognizes that the future is, to a degree, unknowable. Accordingly, he hedges against his own imperfect foresight through a balanced investment diet, consisting of fixed dollar commitments, such as high grade bonds, bank deposits, mortgages, annuity and insurance contracts, on the one hand, and inflation hedges, such as stocks, real estate and individual proprietorships, on the other.

(Mr. Rukeyser will be pleased to receive inquiries from readers concerning their financial problems. Letters with stamped, self addressed envelopes should be sent to The Lincoln Star. Questions of general interest will be answered in the column. Others, to the extent time permits, will be handled by mail.)

as a means of paying fixed obligations, such as estate taxes or repayment of the principal on a mortgage.

In addition, there are other uses for bonds for the living and even the long lived. In times of fiscal mismanagement and political manipulation of the currency, the consequences are not a one-way street. The economic illness is inflation and deflation — chills and fever. During periods of deflation, bonds are attractive. Also high grade bonds bought at current depreciated prices are a good call on cash and can be considered an important part of the individual's and family's reserves against contingencies, including illness, unemployment, or other types of adversity. Besides, prime bonds are currently yielding

Profit Report Picture Is Mixed

New York (AP) — The nation's major industries have reported widely varying third quarter profits with big gains in airlines and oil and big dips in steel, copper, rubber and at one major auto builder.

A glance at the keystone auto industry shows the mixed nature of the reports.

While General Motors Corp. and Chrysler Corp. were telling of increased sales and earnings for the three months ended Sept. 30, the other members of the automotive Big Three, Ford Motor Co., reported a multimillion dollar loss.

Ford blamed its net loss of $73.9 million in the July-August-September period on a strike by the United Auto Workers Union that had idled the company's production lines since Sept. 6.

The loss was Ford's biggest since it became publicly owned in 1956. GM reported third quarter income of $149 million, compared with $100 million one year earlier, up 49.5%. Chrysler had income of $26.8 million, compared with $6.5 million, up 312.3%.

The two-month steel haulers strike, lower steel consumption, customer liquidation of inventories and rising costs were among the reasons cited by the steel industry for its disappointing third quarter.

Steel Profits

U.S. Steel Corp., the nation's No. 1 steelmaker, said its profits for the period were off more than 40% from a year earlier — $36.2 million against $61,635,150.

Bethlehem Steel Corp., No. 2, reported a drop of about 50% in income for the three months. It said it had $23,158,000 this year against $46,196,000 in 1966. Republic Steel was down 32.6%, and Jones & Laughlin was off 58%.

Fourth - ranked National Steel was the only one of the industry's top five to show an increase. It said it was up 11%.

Copper Strike

The copper industry also blamed a strike for the beating its income took in the quarter.

The industry has been strikebound since July 15 and even if the stoppage ended immediately it still would take at least a month to get things running normally again.

Kennecott Copper Corp., the nation's top copper producer, said its third quarter income fell to $4,173,265, or 12 cents a share, from $32,952,000, or 99 cents a share, a year earlier when there was no strike.

Rubber Earnings

And a 39.2% dip in the three-month earnings of nine rubber companies was blamed on a strike which idled the three largest until mid-July.

A strike also affected airlines earnings — but in another way.

Five airlines reported third quarter profits this year that were almost triple of those of a year earlier. But the reason for the big advance was that four of the five reporting were grounded for most of the 1966 period by a mechanics strike.

Airline Increase

United Air Lines, for example, reported income of $30,896,000 this third quarter, compared with $2,017,000 for the 1966 period. But American Airlines, the only line that kept flying during the strike, reported earnings this quarter of $21,899,000, a drop of 12.4% from last year's $24,991,000.

Many oil industry leaders turned out improved third quarter profit sheets.

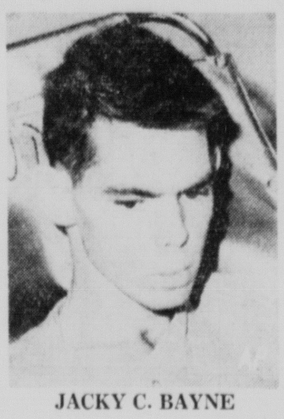
Standard Oil of New Jersey reported its earnings were $315 million, a 15.8% increase over 1966's $272 million. Mobil Oil Corp. had income of $93.8 million, compared with $87.8 million, and Clark Oil & Refining Corp. reported income at $3,117,342 and $2,483,559 respectively.

Embalmer Finds 'Dead' GI Alive

Washington (UPI)— For Sp. 4 Jacky C. Bayne, new life came on a Vietnam battlefield.

Three and a half months ago, Bayne and his German shepherd patrol dog stepped on a Viet Cong boobytrap. The exploding charge sent metal fragments ripping into their bodies.

Bayne's body—torn and inert—was carried to a field hospital. There was no breathing, no heartbeat, no sign of life. Finally, he was taken away for dead, another name on the list of Vietnam casualties.



JACKY C. BAYNE

Then an Army embalmer made a routine incision, designed to expose the femoral artery, in Bayne's groin. It is in this artery, which carries blood to the legs, that embalming fluid is injected.

There was a faint flicker of life.

The astonished embalmer rushed the body back to a hospital. Medics toiled anew to revive it. Traces of vitality began to reappear, and the body of Jacky C. Bayne took on life.

Bayne, 22, is now in Ward 35 of Walter Reed Army Medical Center in Washington. His mother, Mrs. E. L. Bayne of Fort Mill, S.C., is at his side, just as she has been since he was flown back to the States.

Doctors say the human brain cannot be deprived of blood for more than four or five minutes without suffering damage. The brain of Jacky Bayne was deprived of blood much longer than that. He is rational, but he speaks haltingly.

Silos Sell For $667

New York (AP)—The State University of New York bought two surplus underground Atlas missile silos from the federal government for $667 each. They cost $8.5 million each when they were built to house nuclear warhead missiles in 1962.

Space Dock Works

Moscow (UPI)—The second of two unmanned Soviet spacecraft that docked automatically in orbit returned to earth Thursday, completing a historic test the Russians said paves the way "for creating big scientific space stations."

The official Soviet Tass news agency said the satellite known as Cosmos 188 was brought down three days after it linked up in space with Cosmos 186, which came back to earth Tuesday.

The announcement said the return of the latest sputnik ended an "extensive program of experimental research."

"It has been proved in practice that the present level of development of engineering makes it possible to carry out the automatic assembly of space vehicles on an orbit without man's supervision," Tass said.

The Soviets have criticized the use of American astronauts for space dockings as an unnecessary risk of life.

Strangling Brings Forth Weird Story

Philadelphia (AP)—A weird tale of young college men being drugged in a waterfront store, before being dumped elsewhere, emerged Thursday in the strangulation of a University of Pennsylvania freshman.

Police charged Stephen Weinstein, a single, 35-year-old tobacco shop owner, with the murder of the student, John Walker Green III, of Des Moines, Iowa. A search for Weinstein, missing since Tuesday, was underway.

Drugged, Molested

Authorities said he was drugged and sexually abused before he was strangled. An autopsy showed the 18-year-old youth's body bore bites and other marks, and he was given some kind of a knockout drug.

Thursday, police charged two teenaged boys with being accessories after the fact of murder. A third youth was being questioned.

Police quoted two boys as saying each was paid $20 to help get rid of the body.

Similar Stories

Investigators said five Penn students have told of being given knockout drops or drugged while at the tobacco shop, later waking up unaware of what had happened.

Charged with being accessories were James Hammell, 14, and Vincent Myers, 16, both Philadelphia school boys.

Police quoted Hammell and Myers as saying in a signed statement they were paid $20 each to help get rid of Green's body.

Police also quoted Hammell and Myers as saying they had taken other drugged students from the riverfront tobacco shop back to the Penn campus, some five miles away, and dumping them there.

Bobs To Surface

Detectives said Hammell and Myers also told of helping take Green's body in the trunk for burial in a rural area near Reading, Pa., 35 miles northwest of Philadelphia. Finding the ground too hard, however, they said they returned with the trunk to Philadelphia. After shoveling some dirt and stones into it for weight, the trunk was thrown into the Delaware River, police quoted them. It sank momentarily, they said, but then bobbed to the surface.

Two workers eating their lunch on a pier Tuesday saw the trunk and pulled it out. Inside was Green's body, stuffed into a sleeping bag.

Green, missing since Oct. 22, left his dormitory then, telling fellow students he was going to buy a pipe.

Green was a chemistry major, highly thought of by friends and superiors. Associates at Lincoln High School in Des Moines, which he attended, said he was "a real nice guy," "one of my most dependable boys" and "the kind who would really help old ladies across the street."

NWU Student Victim Of Theft Of $250 Flute

A flute valued at $250 was stolen from a Nebraska Wesleyan University student's locker Thursday morning, police said.

Police said that Linda A. Spellman of Johnson Hall on the NWU campus told authorities that she had placed her flute in her locker after practice, but when she returned, it was missing.

Police said that the instrument could be identified by a small dent near the mouthpiece and a long scratch on the sterling silver base.

Perkins Re-Elected

Dwight C. Perkins, president of Farmers Mutual Insurance Co., was re-elected Thursday to a three-year term on the board of governors of the National Association of Independent Insurers at the group's annual meeting in Bal Harbour, Fla.

Former Paint Firm Official, Stewart, Dies

John S. Stewart of 831 So. 15th, former vice president and general manager of Lincoln Paint and Color Co., died in Lincoln Thursday at the age of 88.

Mr. Stewart, a Lincoln resident for 41 years, was born in Mulvane, Kan. and graduated from the University of Kansas in 1898.

He served for several years as a precinct election inspector. He was also finance chairman for the Lancaster County Humane Society, and had served on the Cedars Home for Children Board and the Selective Service Board.

Mr. Stewart was a member of the First Presbyterian Church, Rotary Club, Lincoln Country Club, YMCA, Lincoln Dinner Club, Masonic Lodge, Sesostris Shrine Temple, Knights Templer and Cornhusker Motor Club.

Funeral services will be held at 10:30 a.m. Monday at Roper & Sons' Mortuary, 4300 O. Burial will be at Mt. Moriah Mausoleum in Kansas City, Mo. at 3 p.m. Tuesday.

Surviving Mr. Stewart are three sisters, Mrs. Rachel Hatton, of Mt. Vernon, Wash., Mrs. June Smith and Mrs. H. E. Shaffer, both of Oklahoma City, Okla.

Data Processing Chapter Honors Two Lincolnites

Harold Thaller and Vinton Cheuvront, both of Lincoln, were honored Thursday at the annual social meeting of the Cornhusker chapter of the Data Processing Management Association.

Thaller is associated with Norden Laboratories and is the first chapter member to earn the association's Individual Performance Award. He has served as chapter secretary, president and international director.

Cheuvront, who was awarded the chapter's first honorary membership, was a charter member and is a past president and international director. He retired this week after 41 years with Bankers Life Nebraska.

Officers elected at the meeting were Andrew M. Wuster, president; Walter Elwell, immediate past-president; Raymond Hoover, international director; Cletus Bender, executive vice president; Virgil Tubach, Victor Obermueller and Gordon Jones, vice presidents; Richard Marley, treasurer, and Jack Cherry, secretary.

Home Burglary Nets About $150

A burglar apparently carried away two money bags containing approximately $150 in currency and silver from a Lincoln home during a period of about 15 minutes in which the owner of the home was absent, police said.

Police said that someone apparently knew where the money in the home of Frank J. Edmondson of 2245 T was kept and waited until the coast was clear before making their move.

Marijuana Probe At NU Pushed

By United Press International

An investigation was under way here Thursday into the case of a former University of Nebraska student who school officials said admitted smoking marijuana.

Deputy Lancaster County Atty. William Blue said a decision will be made soon on whether to file charges against the young man, whose identity was not disclosed.

Blue said authorities are attempting to determine if any other persons might be involved.

"This whole case is still in the investigatory stage but we expect to complete it in the very near future," he said.

NU Dean of Students G. Robert Ross said school officials have heard "rumors" that others may be involved but he said nothing substantial has been turned up yet.

"It has always been our policy to check out such rumors and to cooperate fully with the county attorney's office," Ross said.

Ross said the University has been working with the State Safety Patrol's Drug Abuse Division and local law officers in recent weeks on the case.

He said certain information secured during the investigation led to the questioning of the student who Ross said admitted possessing and using marijuana on campus.

The dean said it was the first such instance at the university to his knowledge.

The school's Board of Regents last September adopted a strict policy prohibiting the use of marijuana and other illegal drugs on university property.

The regents said the University would recognize no rationale for even a single instance of drug abuse.

Meanwhile, the legislator who sponsored a new state anti-drug abuse law urged authorities to prosecute the marijuana case "to the fullest extent."

Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff said marijuana use is fast becoming an accepted practice on college campuses across the country and "Nebraska must nip this thing in the bud or we will be forever sorry."

Carpenter disclosed he has asked the Nebraska attorney general for a formal ruling on whether the State Patrol can spend tax funds to finance certain undercover operations aimed at preventing drug abuse at the university and state colleges.

"What I want to know is can the patrol use funds to buy marijuana, LSD and these other mind-expanding drugs to find out who is selling them and take steps to stop the practice," he said.

"I also want to know if funds can be used to finance the operations of undercover agents among the student population."

Power Unit OKs Hi-View Highline Service Transfer

The Nebraska Power Review Board reported Thursday it has approved transfer of the electrical service area of the privately-owned Plainview Hi-View Highline Co. to the North Central Public Power District.

North Central will purchase the company's equipment and serve its 26 rural customers north of Plainview.

The board also approved an application from the Niobrara Valley Electric Membership Corp. to build 15.2 miles of 69 kilovolt transmission line in Boyd County to serve existing customers.

Greek Actress Warned Of Plot To Murder Her

New York (AP)—Actress Melina Mercouri has been informed by the FBI that there may be an attempt on her life, presumably because of her activities against the ruling Greek junta, a spokesman said Thursday.

The spokesman said as a result of the fears of a plot to kill the Greek-born actress, she has been put under police protection.

Miss Mercouri is now starring on Broadway in "Illya Darling," a musical adaptation of "Never on Sunday," the movie which made her famous.
